CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN

DURING

THE MIDDLE AGES.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS
OF
GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND
DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

PUBLISHED BY THE AUTHORITY OF HER MAJESTY'S TREASURY, UNDER THE DIRECTION OF THE MASTER OF THE ROLLS.

ON the 26th of January 1857, the Master of the Rolls submitted to the Treasury a proposal for the publication of materials for the History of this Country from the Invasion of the Romans to the reign of Henry VIII.

The Master of the Rolls suggested that these materials should be selected for publication under competent editors without reference to periodical or chronological arrangement, without mutilation or abridgment, preference being given, in the first instance, to such materials as were most scarce and valuable.

He proposed that each chronicle or historical document to be edited should be treated in the same way as if the editor were engaged on an Editio Princeps; and for this purpose the most correct text should be formed from an accurate collation of the best MSS.

To render the work more generally useful, the Master of the Rolls suggested that the editor should give an account of the MSS. employed by him, of their age and their peculiarities; that he should add to the work a brief account of the life and times of the author, and any remarks necessary to explain the chronology; but no other note or comment was to be allowed, except what might be necessary to establish the correctness of the text.

The works to be published in octavo, separately, as they were finished; the whole responsibility of the task resting upon the editors, who were to be chosen by the Master of the Rolls with the sanction of the Treasury.

The Lords of Her Majesty's Treasury, after a careful consideration of the subject, expressed their opinion in a Treasury Minute, dated February 9, 1857, that the plan recommended by the Master of the Rolls "was well calculated for the accomplishment of this important national object, in an effectual and satisfactory manner, within a reasonable time, and provided proper attention be paid to economy, in making the detailed arrangements, without unnecessary expense."

They expressed their approbation of the proposal that each Chronicle and historical document should be edited in such a manner as to represent with all possible correctness the text of each writer, derived from a collation of the best MSS., and that no notes should be added, except such as were illustrative of the various readings. They suggested, however, that the preface to each work should contain, in addition to the particulars proposed by the Master of the Rolls, a biographical account of the author, so far as authentic materials existed for that purpose, and an estimate of his historical credibility and value.

ANNALS AND MEMORIALS OF ST. EDMUND'S ABBEY.

II.

OF the pieces, composed in or relating to the abbey of St. Edmund in the thirteenth and part of the fourteenth centuries, which are printed in the present volume, the larger and more important moiety is now published for the first time. They consist of: 1, a chronicle by an unknown hand breaking off at A.D. 1212; 2, three narratives of abbatial elections,—those of Hugo de Northwold (1215), Symon de Luton (1257), and Thomas of Totyngton (1302); 3, a French metrical biography of St. Edmund by Denis Piramus; 4, an account of the expulsion of the Franciscan friars from Bury in 1257 and 1263; 5, the story of the Great Riots in 1327, and the sack of the monastery; 6, notes on the deeds of the sacrists, chiefly their building operations, between 1065 and the close of the thirteenth century; and 7 (in the Appendix), the agreement of 1331 winding up the business of the riots, and a series of extracts from the miracle register of the abbey, dated between 1267 and 1341.

volume.

The chronicle in Harl. 447 was edited by Dr. Liebermann (see I., p. lxviii.) in his “Ungedruckte Anglo-Normannische Geschichtsquellen,” Strasburg, 1879. No. 4 was printed, with some inaccuracy, by Battely in his Antiq. S. Edmundi Burgi, Oxford, 1745. No. 6 may be found in Dugdale’s Monasticon (III., 162) printed, however, from a bad MS. Everything else in the volume is, so far as I know, printed now for the first time.

I. Harl. 447. To what I have said in the footnotes I. Harl. to this chronicle I have little here to add. The unique ^{447.}

copy of the text occurs in a fine volume of the Harleian collection, written in hands of the thirteenth century, of which the prior and larger portion consists of a copy of Malmesbury's Gesta Regum. The MS. formerly belonged to the monastery of St. Edmund. In the main, as stated in Hardy's Catalogue (III., 30), the work is an abridgment of Diceto; but the later portion is not without an independent historical value. With regard to John's reign, its accuracy is confirmed by the Itinerary,¹ and it corrects several errors and omissions of Wendover and Matthew Paris. Taxter used it freely; see the footnotes between p. 15 and p. 25. The writer seems to have been a monk of Bury, and to have been present at the death of Abbot Samson (p. 20, note a). Absolute unlikeness of style forbids his identification with the author of "Electio Hugonis," who must have been a much younger man.

II. Electio Hugonis.

II. Electio Hugonis. The same MS. (Harl. 1005), called in the monastery "Liber Albus," which contains the chronicle² of Jocelin de Brakelonde, yields also this valuable contribution to the English history of the thirteenth century, which it is matter of surprise should have remained till now unprinted. The "Electio Hugonis" was used by the writer of a work preserved in the public library at Cambridge (Add. 850), giving a sketch of the history of the abbey from Canute's reign to the middle of the fourteenth century; but since that time there is no evidence of any historical writer having ever had recourse to it. Yet it gives a number of new and curious details throwing light on the character of King John; Stephen Langton it helps us to see a little more clearly than before; it corrects in several places the received chronology of Matthew Paris; finally it minutely explains the phases of a contention in which the same principles which the Guelfs and Ghibelins represented abroad, were at war for the mastery within the walls of an English convent.

The thread of narrative running through the marginal analyses gives a meagre outline of what occurred ; and this for most readers will probably be sufficient ; but since there are passages of no common interest and value to which a mere analysis fails to do justice, I propose to draw attention to these by giving them a fuller treatment. The reader will thus be spared the trouble of wading through more of the cumbrous Latin of the original than he may find desirable.

The preliminary facts are few and simple. Samson died on the 30th December 1211 ; the king kept the abbatial property in his own hands for a year and a half ; then, in July 1213, he wrote to the convent desiring that they would send to him, whether he were in England or beyond the sea, discreet men from among their number, duly instructed and empowered, to choose an abbot for them according to the custom of England.

From the terms of the king's letter (p. 31) it may be assumed that he expected the convent to follow the same course as at the election of Samson thirty years before, namely, to propose to him certain names, any one of which would be acceptable to them, and leave him free to say which of the names he preferred. This is what he meant by "the custom of England." But at this time, under the pontificate of Innocent III., a high ecclesiastical current was running in England and the western church generally, tending to make the clergy resist all lay interference in the matter of appointments, and claim for chapters, whether cathedral or monastic, the right of "free election." The tendency was so strong that at first it carried away all the monks, the older and more cautious, as well as those who were young and enthusiastic. Proceeding by what was called the "way of compromise" (via compromissi) the convent nominated seven of its members to choose an abbot, and undertook to abide by their choice. The seven unanimously elected Hugo de Northwold (p. 33); not a dissenting voice was heard; and the abbot elect, attended by Herbert the prior and others of the community, proceeded to court to seek confirmation from the king.

John, when he heard that the convent had agreed to a single name only, and allowed him no choice in the matter, was angry, and refused to confirm the election.

From this point a division began to show itself among the monks, and increased till they formed two nearly equal parties. These may be designated the king's party, and the free-choice party. The king's party was headed by Robert de Gravelee, the sacrist, a man so unpopular in the convent, that a successful protest had been made (p. 31) against the inclusion of his name among the seven electors. The offences charged against him, however, do not seem to have been very serious; perhaps he was of an arbitrary temper, and of somewhat rough and unconciliatory manners; but his age, experience of affairs, and practical ability, secured to him great weight in the deliberations of the chapter. As soon as he understood the nature of the king's objection, he allowed its force, and from that time exerted himself to obtain a reversal of what had been done, so that Hugo should resign his position as abbot elect, and in a fresh election the king's customary rights should be respected.

A curious account of a sermon (p. 59) preached by the sacrist while the controversy was proceeding, shows him asserting the duty of submitting to state authority, whether resistance came from laymen or ecclesiastics. Herein, of course, he was in sympathy with the jurists of France and Italy, and with the views held later on by the great Ghibelin poet of Florence. "There are certain dogs," he said, "of such a kind, that when

“ their own badness is not enough for them, they go and “ instal themselves in some country where they find
 “ other dogs of a like temper to themselves, and enticing
 “ them to come along with them to the sheepfolds, end
 “ by throttling and killing them. So it was with “ William the Bearded, who, while overturning the “ peace of the city of London against his lord the king,
 “ was himself overturned, and sent to the gallows by
 “ the Archbishop of Canterbury. So it was also with “ the monks of Canterbury, who, after the death of “ their chief shepherd, considering how they might “ appoint his successor without the royal assent, “ engaged in strife with their lord the king; whence “ through their manifest guilt their house was nearly “ brought to ruin, being only saved by the Divine “ mercy.”¹

With the sacrist was Jocelin the almoner, who, by some words dropped in the chapter (p. 35), was the first to start the view that the convent had made a mistake, and that it ought to put itself right with the king. I am strongly disposed to think that this was Jocelin de Brakelonde; the biographer of Samson. In that biography Jocelin names himself as at one time chaplain to the abbot, at another time guest-master; and if he was the same person whose name occurs in the obscure passage on p. 272 (vol. I.) he had been also almoner. It is impossible to be certain one way or the other; but the Jocelin of the present work would be just of the age and standing in the convent that Jocelin de Brakelonde must have been if he had lived to this time; and when the half-cynical, melancholy tone of the reflections of the latter on the election of prior Herbert is remembered (I., 326), it may be admitted that he would have been likely to grow into the disenchanted, disillusioned Jocelin—"vir duplex animo et varius"—(p. 64) of our treatise, who deemed it mere folly and waste of time to enter into a conflict with the ancient monarchical government of the land, and was only bored by the enthusiasm of the young monks.

Another chief member of the king's party was the blundering precentor, Richard, of whom it was said that when he intended to tell the legate (p. 43) that he knew nothing of canon-law, ("Domine legate, Boloniam non vidi, nec leges scio,") he said, "Babiloniam" by mistake for "Boloniam" (Bologna). Walter the subsacrist, William the pitantiary, Albinus the sub-prior, and Adam the infirmarian, took the same side; in fact, nearly all the "obediencers" or office-holders were of the king's party. Prior Herbert affected to be neutral, but as the struggle proceeded, he came more and more under the ascendancy of the sacrist.

In the free-choice party the person of principal rank was Peter the cellarer; but master Nicholas, and master Thomas of Walsingham, being both effective speakers, had the chief hand in guiding their counsels. Richard of Saxham could always be depended upon. The writer of the tract ranges himself earnestly on this side; the sacrist he calls a fox, and the north wind ("aquilo, unde omne malum"), while those who stood by the election of Hugo are the sound, the faithful, the incorruptible party.

The turns and complications of the business were many, and anyone who wishes to study and understand them may find ample employment in the "Electio Hugonis." The legate Nicholas, who had spent the Christmas of 1213 at Bury by the king's desire, in order to bring about an accommodation, utterly failed to do so (p. 46). The pope, hearing of the schism that had broken out among the monks, issued a commission (p. 69) to the abbot of Wardon, the prior of Dunstable, and the dean of Salisbury, directing them to inquire into the validity of Hugo's election. The proceedings of this commission take up most of the remainder of the tract. Since it did not touch what was, practically, the point of importance,—whether the king would accept Hugo and invest him with the temporalities, or refuse to do so,—it might seem at first sight to have been labour thrown away. John had no strong objection to Hugo, nor does he seem to have preferred any other candidate; but he wished to barter his confirmation for money (p. 124), or, failing that, to make it serve his interests in some way or other. To pay money would have savoured of simony; and Hugo, backed by Langton, would not meet the king's wishes in that way. The dispute had apparently come to a dead lock. This being so, although nothing that the commission should decide could force the king to accept the candidate, still a solemn declaration after full inquiry that Hugo was in an ecclesiastical sense fully qualified to be abbot of Bury, necessarily had its effect on the king's mind. This declaration was made. On the 10th March 1215 the commissioners pronounced a judgment entirely in favour of Hugo's election; and three months later the king, on the field of Runnymede, received him into favour, and allowed him to do homage for the temporalities of the abbey.

The narrative draws closer and closer to John as it proceeds, and, as coming from an intelligent contemporary and eye-witness, is of historical value. In the summer of 1214 Hugo travelled to Poitou to find the king (p. 89). It was after the battle of Bouvines; at first John was ungracious and repellent; but after a time, through the influence of Robert de Curtun, the legate of France, he showed marked favour to his petitioner, wrote to the convent speaking of him as "their elect," and ordered instructions to be sent to the justiciary (Peter des Roches bishop of Winchester) to restrain all waste on the lands and woods of St. Edmund.

Time passed, and the king suggested to Hugo that he should return to England; he himself would soon follow. Both sailed from France about the same time, and arrived in England on the same day, Oct. 13, 1214,—the king landing at Dartmouth, Hugo at Dover. The mistake of Wendover and Paris as to the date is mentioned in a note on p. 92.

After reaching Bury on the 23rd October, Hugo applied to the chapter for leave to take away the convent charters in order to show them to the king, who had said that if they proved the right of the convent to free election, he would yield. The chapter refused to let the charters be removed, because the king had declared his intention of soon visiting the monastery. Hugo therefore had copies made of the charter, and departed with his friends to find the king (p. 94). But the other side had been beforehand with him; the sacrist, Adam the infirmarian, and others interviewed the king at Windsor on the day before Hugo's arrival in London, and laboured to set his mind against the election. Hugo met the king "outside of London," but found difficulty in having speech with him owing to the opposition of the other side. When he spoke of his election, the king referred him to Peter des Roches, who, being waited upon, knew nothing about the matter; and this happened more than once. Next day Hugo came to the chapel where the king was about to hear mass (p. 95); at the close of which he mildly complained of the useless trouble to which he had been put, in trying to find out John's intentions. The king replied, "What would you have me say to you? I am fonder of myself and my crown than of you and your dignity."¹ You have stirred up war against me, and

“ this will not at all serve your turn.” Hugo strenuously denied this, and John said, “ It was not specially on your account that I spoke, but on account of certain others.”¹ Finding that he could effect nothing, Hugo returned to Bury, whither, on the 4th November, the king followed. But two days previously he wrote thus to the prior and convent, “ We have heard that Hugo of Norwold, who represents himself as your abbot elect, has given you to understand that he has our favour and goodwill. But, that the truth of the matter may be more fully known to you, we send you word that he has never deserved our favour, nor done anything towards us which should be a reason why he ought to have it.” It is evident that John was not yet prepared to restore to Hugo or any one else the temporalities of the abbey, unless it should be made worth his while.

Tuesday the 4th November had arrived; the king A.D. 1214. was in Bury, and declared that he would meet the monks in the chapter-house.² “ The lord king entering the chapter-house, no layman being with him except Saer de Querci, Earl of Winchester, and Philip de Hulekotes, who carried a sword before the king, there was a deep silence, and thus he spoke: ‘ My brothers, although it is not my wont to enter a chapter-house of monks, yet, on the occasion of my peregrinatio, I thought it good to come and pay you this visit. Now, therefore, inasmuch as, the Lord so disposing, I have carried my purpose into effect, I request of you that in the process of your election,

¹ John when he said this was probably thinking of Stephen Langton, and of the good understanding which he must have known to prevail between him and certain barons.

² It would be useless to seek now for any vestiges of this chapter-house, which was built under Abbot Ording in the 12th century (p. 290); for it was pulled down, and a new one built up from the foundations, by the sacrist Richard de Newport, about 1230. See p. 293.

“ ‘made without due discretion, you would observe my “ ‘ancient customary right. This if you do, and shape “ ‘your conduct by my counsels, then, all danger of “ ‘delay being removed, whatever man you may choose “ ‘from amongst you, whether it be he who gives “ ‘himself out for abbot elect, or some one else, accord“ ‘ing as you may arrange, I will receive as your pastor
 “ ‘and admit to my favour. But if you close your ears
 “ ‘in this way against my counsels, however sound, I “ ‘am obliged to forewarn you of three dangers ahead,
 “ ‘so that, becoming aware of these, you may of two “ ‘evils choose the least. The first is, that your house, “ ‘owing to the quarrel or dissension which has arisen “ ‘among you concerning the election of your abbot, is “ ‘likely in course of time to fall into poverty and “ ‘penury. The second, that your fair fame, so widely “ ‘spread through all the orders and in every place, will “ ‘be besmirched. The third, that you will incur the “ ‘ill-will of your prince.’ For these three reasons the “ king advised and enjoined the elect to deliberate with “ his friends on the propriety of resigning his election
 “ into the king’s hands, and withdrawing the appeals “ made in favour of it. Then Sir Hugo, the elect, as “ one through whose mouth the Holy Ghost openly “ spoke, answered; ‘Although all that belongs to us lies “ ‘in the hand of our lord the king, and it falls to him
 “ ‘of right to maintain ecclesiastical liberties unharmed
 “ ‘and inviolate, yet I will cheerfully obey the king’s
 “ ‘will in all things and on all occasions, salvo jure
 “ ‘ecclesiastico.’ After these words, by which the rights “ of the Church were fully guarded, the king, by the “ advice of Pharaoh and his host, commanded that the “ two parties should divide. For he calculated, accord“ ing to what he had heard from Pharaoh, that is——,¹

¹ “Sacrista” must have been written here, but the word has fallen out.

“ that in the royal presence he would not find, for fear
“ of the royal majesty, six monks in all the convent
“ who would resist his will. But a thing wonderful
“ and truly amazing [happened], that when the two “ parties divided at the king’s command, sitting on “ different sides of the chapter-house, the party of “ faithfulness on the right side wonderfully outnumbered
“ the sacrist’s party on the left. Surprised at “ this unlooked for result, the unfaithful, that is, the “ sacrist’s party was filled with stupor and confusion;
“ and so also was the king himself ” (p. 97).

A debate now arose, and two different versions of Hugo’s election were submitted to the king, one by Robert the chamberlain, the other by the sacrist. Thomas of Walsingham and Richard of Saxham went up to the king, and vehemently entreated him to confirm an election which had been in all points thoroughly canonical. John replied (p. 100), “ Brothers, an unused charter “ is of no value; and since till now you have kept “ silence about these things [the old charters supposed to “ give the monks an absolute right of election], so that
“ at no time have they been alleged in bar of my customary “ liberties, they must be deemed idle and “ frivolous.” A strange speech was presently made by a monk named Henry Rufus, one of those half-insane persons whom the actual presence in the flesh of a royal personage excites almost beyond the control of their wavering reason. He began, “ Adorande rex et tremende,” declared that he had been fearfully persecuted by the other side for his loyalty to his king, and prayed that “ the royal majesty would make his fury blaze “ forth against the enemies who opposed his dignities
“ with a mighty hand and a stretched-out arm.” The king, as if disdainingly to give an answer, said nothing; but the stout soldier, Philip de Hulekotes, who had heard something about the king’s peace, and thought to reassure the speaker, said, “ O man, being fenced in on “ every side by the pax regia, do not be afraid.” Soon afterwards the king, “ minas prætendendo,” threatening the monks as to the consequences of continued contumacy, departed to his lodgings.

In March 1215, after the confirmation of his election by the papal commissioners, Hugo travelled into Nottinghamshire to seek the king, and found him in Sherwood Forest. John was probably at Clipstone, near Mansfield, where there was a royal hunting lodge. Hugo and his companions, “ when they saw the king coming from a long way off, got down from their horses, in order that, meeting him on foot, they might the more easily win his favour ; and when he came up, they went down on their bended knees before him, entreating the king’s benevolence and grace. By this humility, so openly displayed before him, the king was wonderfully appeased ; and not letting the elect remain any longer prostrate on the ground, he raised him up, and addressed him in these words, ‘ Welcome, sir abbot elect, salvo jure regni mei.’ ”¹ Then, walking forward, he held much private conversation with him. Next morning Hugo went to the chapel where the king was about to hear mass (p. 124) ; after it was over, John said to him, “ Go to William Brewere ; he will explain to thee my will more fully.” Hugo called on Brewere, and discussed the election with a certain prior and Paganus the Lombard, an advocate. At last Brewere told him that the king had appointed the coming 13th of April to meet his barons at Oxford, there to consult with them on some difficult questions of state, super quibusdam arduis regni sui ; and that on this occasion,

¹ The importance attached by the mediæval mind to salvos of this kind, by which legal rights were guarded in the midst of partial concessions, finds many illustrations in our annals, e.g., in the history of Thomas-à-Becket, and in the communications between the king and the clergy in 1530.

after taking counsel with his faithful barons, he would settle the affair of the Bury election.

Hugo went to Oxford; but still no progress could be made; although the archbishop, William Longsword earl of Salisbury, and other great personages pleaded his cause. "But the king had determined within
" himself by no means to assent to Hugo's wishes,
" unless a certain amount of money passed in the first
" place, 'nisi præcederet certa quantitas nummorum';
" and to this, though the king's counsellors urged him
" to it, Hugo, backed by the advice of the lord of " Canterbury, refused to consent." The king's final answer was this; "Since, by the advice of my faithful
" lieges, I have already begun to negotiate with the
" Pope through my envoys concerning all elections

We have now arrived at June 1215, and the author is within a few paragraphs of the end of his treatise; yet he has not said one word about the stupendous events which were shaking the public life of England, and which were to make this year and this month memorable for Englishmen to all time. The melodramatic scene related by Wendover, and referred by him to the 21st November 1214, the archbishop meeting the discontented barons in the great church of St. Edmund, reading to them Henry I.'s charter, and hearing them swear on the high altar to make war on John unless he gave them the liberties contained therein,—on all this the author is absolutely silent. Whether this silence of a monk of the house as to an event so remarkable throws any doubt on the story, is a question which I leave to authorities like Bishop Stubbs, and our new Regius Professor at Oxford to consider. However, it is gratifying to find that the strife of which Magna Charta was the fruit is not entirely passed over by our author. "After the lapse of a few days," he writes, "a

 " 'commotio' arose between the lord king and the " barons of England, because the lord king was endeavoring with all his might to annul their charter on
 " the greater liberties which had been confirmed by the " illustrious king Henry, his father."¹ Langton regarded this "commotio" as a reason why Hugo should lose no time in placing himself in a position to confront all possible eventualities; he therefore sent desiring Hugo to come to him; and when he came, he advised him to get himself blessed without delay. Hugo accordingly went to Rochester, and was blessed at Halling by the bishop of that see. After his benediction (May 17) he celebrated mass; immediately after which the startling news arrived that London had fallen into the hands of the insurgent barons (p. 127). Hugo returned to Bury, but following Langton's counsel, ceased not to press his suit on the king. His messenger, Robert of Saxham, found John at Staines, attended by the earls of Warenne and Pembroke, and Robert de Burgate. With a countenance bland and kind, John said to the messenger. "Brother, return home at once,
 " and charge your elect as from me to make haste and
 " come to me without a moment's delay. When he has " come, I will by the grace of God do such a great thing
 " as will turn to the praise and honour of your house, and
 " of the whole English church."

Hugo complied, and this was to be the last of his weary journeys. Accompanied by prior Herbert, Richard the precentor, Robert the sacrist, Richard of Hengham, and master Nicholas, he travelled southwards, and found the king at Windsor on Whit Tuesday (June 9). What follows, to nearly the end of the tract, ^{A.D. 1215.} is of sufficient general interest to warrant translation:—

“ While he [Hugo] was conversing about his business
 “ with the lord of Canterbury, who was then at Wind“ sor, the king came up and made as if he would pass “ between them. Then the lord of Canterbury, having “ first made an obeisance, said, ‘ My lord the king, this “ ‘ is the abbot of St. Edmunds, who ceases not through “ ‘ us to entreat earnestly for the favour of our lord the “ ‘ king.’ The king replied, ‘ Let him come to me “ ‘ to-morrow in Staines Meadow,¹ and there by the “ ‘ grace of God and with the aid of your merits we “ ‘ will attempt to settle his business.’ When Hugo “ came there and waited for a long time in the meadow
 “ that lies [between Staines and Windsor], after dis“ cussions not a few, and messages for and from barons “ passing to and fro, which were often despatched to “ them on this matter by the lord king, at length he “ admitted the abbot to the kiss of grace and favour, “ postponing, however, the fealty which was due from “ him to the King till the next day.

“ When this was over, the king followed him and
 “ said, ‘ Father Abbot, now I have one request left “ ‘ which I must make of you, and which must be “ ‘ satisfied by your kindness, namely, that your prayer “ ‘ might prevail, so that we may not be deprived of the “ ‘ company at our table of him whom the divine mercy
 “ ‘ has this day restored to my favour.’ ”

The abbot assented, and they dined together that day at Windsor.

“ Now while they were sitting after dinner on the “ royal couch, conversing on many matters in turn in “ the chamber, the sacrist rose up before them all, and “ prostrating himself before the king did obeisance to

“ this the king replied as one in a rage, adding an oath,
“ in the hearing of the abbot and others, ‘By the Lord’s “ ‘feet, half a year ago I would have received him into “ ‘my favour and love but for thee’; and turning to
“ the abbot, he said, ‘O abbot, this sacrist has won thee
“ ‘many enemies in my court. For after my return “ ‘from the parts beyond the sea I was disposed, on the “ ‘petition of the legate of France, to take thee into my “ ‘favour. But my courtiers, who were endeavouring
“ ‘to support the cause of this sacrist against thee, not “ ‘only used all their efforts to prevent my doing so,

“ confusion, not being able to endure the king’s look “ any longer, he secretly retired without asking the “ king’s leave.

“ After all these things had been so finished and “ transacted, before so numerous and distinguished a “ body of nobles, the lord abbot, after doing homage to “ the king the next day, made haste to return to his “ own place. And although he had been in the earlier “ stages of the business so fiercely assailed by the “ adversaries of God and the Church, that they might “ bar and cancel his promotion, and hinder him from “ winning the king’s favour, yet from that day forth
“ he was called, not indeed by them, but by the king, “ ‘father abbot’ and ‘holy father’ with all honour and “ reverence. So favoured by fortune, the worshipful “ abbot Hugo, adorning his high post by the divine “ appointment,¹ having manfully quelled the storm of “ the mighty sea raging against him, vigorously met

“ and overcome diverse perils which often threatened “ him, and publicly trampled under foot the perjury and “ false witness that were employed against him, so bore “ himself towards all men, as not only to make himself “ beloved by those who were ‘ of the household of faith,’
“ who for his sake had honourably borne ‘ the burden of “ the day and the heats,’ but even in the case of others “ (whom I will not call his enemies, but yet I would
“ that they were his friends) to labour zealously to “ promote them to high office and dignity in the

The tract to which I have drawn attention in the foregoing pages cannot fail on many accounts to attract the notice of historical students. Not the least singular feature in it is the favourable picture which it draws of King John. The writer belonged to the party in the convent which from first to last accepted Hugo's election as canonical, and regarded John's assertion of his “ customary rights ” as an unwarrantable interference with the monastic liberties. Yet the impression left of the king's character is that of a monarch who habitually, or at least frequently, attends mass; whose manners, when he likes, are polished, courteous, and kind (p. 128); who can bear to be opposed and contradicted; who, though forced by his money troubles into what looks like rapacity, gives so little offence by it that knights, burgesses, and soemen join hands with enthusiastic unanimity in releasing him from all their claims (p. 113); finally, whose contention as to his right to be consulted in the choice of an abbot for Bury was affirmed to be reasonable in June 1214 (p. 75) by the very man,

The third piece in the volume is a letter from Robert Graveley after his promotion to the abbacy of Thorney, giving private information to his successor in the office of sacrist at Bury on the important questions, (1) whether the abbot of St. Edmund's had a customary right to use the sacrist's waggon and horses; (2) what had been the practice as to the supply of wine.

IV. La Vie
mund.

IV. La Vie Seint Edmund le Rey. Denis Piramus, the author of the French poem so named, lived much at court, as he tells us, in early life, and wrote poetry such as its frequenters loved. In a note on p. 138 I have examined the question of his authorship of the romance of Partonope; and in addition to what is there urged against it, may point out that if he had been himself the author, he would hardly have spoken as he does in the lines "Si est il tenu," &c. (l. 32 seq.) "Yet he," the writer of Partonope, fabulous and fanciful as his subject is, "is held for a good author, and his verses are much liked and praised in these splendid courts."

Assuming then that Denis did not write Partonope, we know absolutely nothing about him, except what he writes of himself in this Life of St. Edmund. Sir Thomas D. Hardy mentions (Catal., No. 1107) what, if true, would be rather interesting, that he "composed the Life of St. Edmund to amuse the king and his nobles "during a sea voyage." But the only origin for this statement is a singular misconception by Sir Thomas of the words of the Abbé de la Rue (Essais sur les Bardes, III., 104), who, quoting a few lines from Denis's description of Edmund's voyage, calls attention to the games and other employments with which he and his barons amused themselves.

That Denis had passed much of his life in England, may be inferred both from what he says of his career at court, which the Abbé de la Rue understands without hesitation of the court of Henry II., and also from the poem itself. The sprinkling of English words in it—"north," "knivez," "eslinges," "screp," "boelin," "holgurdin," "welcomer," "lof," "powes," "ham,"—seem to show that he wrote French under difficulties, in the midst of an English-speaking population; and the direct statement that the heads¹ of the monastery (l. 3283) had entrusted to him the labour of writing the second part of the translation, makes it probable that England was his ordinary place of abode.

The free and copious style of the poem, and the earnestness with which the poet carries out his task, give it, I think, more interest than most of the French romances and other pieces dating from the same century possess. For this reason, among others, I was unwilling to annex a bald English translation, but preferred to compile a glossary as perfect as I could make it, so that anyone who desired to master the poem might, if he had only a tolerable knowledge of modern French, be easily able to do so. While thus engaged, I have been much struck by the extraordinary wealth of the old French language, and have felt less surprise at the doubt which Robert Grosteste, Wadington, Gower, and many other Englishmen entertained as to the possibility of the native speech ever coping with it for purposes of literature.

It is worth while to compare Denis's poem with another old French poem recently published, under the careful editing of Mr. Orpen, on the conquest of Ireland by the Normans in 1170. There is on the whole a remarkable likeness in the grammatical forms which occur in the two poems, and the age of production of the one cannot widely differ from that of the other.

“The Song of Dermot and the Earl” will always be much more read, on account of its historical importance; on the other hand, in power, vivacity, and variety of expression, and in metrical regularity, Denis Piramus much surpasses his Franco-Irish brother. The propriety of Mr. Orpen’s course in giving a literal English translation of his interesting fragment need not be questioned, because,—its historical being greater than its literary value—it was right to provide for its contents becoming widely known with as little trouble as possible.

V. Electio
Symonis.

Conventual affairs,
1215-1257.

V.—Electio Symonis Before describing the next piece, on the election of Abbot Symon, it may be advisable to devote a few words to the course of conventual affairs in the forty-two years which had passed since the accession of Hugo. The life of this excellent man and pattern monk covered nearly the whole of it, for he died in 1254. In 1224 he appeared in the royal camp before Bedford Castle, the stronghold of the infamous Fulk de Breauté. The registers (see Battely, p. 156) inform us that he was attended there by the knights holding manors under St. Edmund (vol. I. p. 317), and also by some holding the saint’s land by the curious tenure of a serjeanty, under which they were bound to forage for the abbot when he was attending the king in war, and to do transport service for him, some with carts, some with pack-horses, some with their own backs.¹

Herbert the prior, whose appointment was made in Samson’s time, and whose conduct during the contentions at the time of Hugo’s election seems to have been rather weak,² died in 1220. His successor, Richard de Insula, or de l'Isle, a man "genere clarus, sed moribus clarior," says Matthew Paris, was elected abbot of Burton in 1222. In 1229 Hugo, whose mild and winning character, tempered by firmness,¹ gained for him general goodwill, was selected for the vacant see of Ely. The king, Henry III., took him into great favour, and his relations with that forcible-feeble ruler, during his episcopate of twenty-five years, are described with considerable fullness by Matthew Paris. In 1236 Henry sent him to Provence with the bishop of Hereford, to receive from Count Raymond her father, Eleanor, his affianced bride, and bring her to England. The envoys were made welcome everywhere; with Eleanor in their charge they passed through Navarre into France, where the king and queen entertained the party with warm hospitality, crossed from Witsand to Dover, and brought Eleanor to the king at Canterbury. Here the marriage at once took place, and five days afterwards Hugo was among the bishops present at the magnificent double coronation of king and queen in Westminster Abbey.

In 1248 he attended the parliament in London in the spring; and in the following October came up again to the great fair at Westminster, about St. Edward's day, for the profit and enhancement of which the king forbade the holding of many country fairs, among them that of Ely. Hugo complained of this, but only got fair words in reply.

The great aim and the persistent toil of Hugo's episcopal life were crowned in September 1252, when the works of decoration and enlargement on which he had long been engaged were completed, and the renewed cathedral was dedicated in the presence of many bishops and a great concourse of people.

In the same year William de Valence, the king's half-brother, "flown with insolence and wine," com-

"It is a cursed thing," he went on, "that there should be so many kings in one kingdom, and all tyrants." The allusion, of course, was to the queen's uncles and brothers, and to the sons of Henry's mother by the Count de la Marche.

The fact that Hugo was asked to give the episcopal benediction to two abbots of Bury,—Henry in 1235, and Edmund de Walpole in 1248,—is a sufficient proof that kind feeling and friendly relations prevailed without interruption between the convent and the bishop.

On those June days, decisive of the fate of a nation, which Hugo passed on Runnymede in 1215 (infra p. 128), he was probably too much engrossed with his own affairs to give much thought to the parley between John and the barons which resulted in the signing of Magna Charta. Later on, it is evident that he attached its full weight to that great covenant, for it appears that in the year before his death,² he took part with his brother bishops,—his signature being third on the list,—in denouncing solemn excommunication against any who should transgress the liberties of the church and realm of England, especially those contained in Magna Charta and the Charter of Forests,—“præcipue earum quæ continentur in carta libertatum regni Angliæ et carta de foresta.”

Hugo died in August 1254. Matthew Paris, who probably knew him well, speaks of him as the glory of the Benedictine order, "flos nigrorum monachorum," and says that as he had been known in England as an abbot among abbots, so also he shone brightly as a bishop among bishops.

Returning to the succession of abbots, we find that on the nomination of Hugo to the see of Ely in 1229, Richard de l'Isle, who had been for seven years abbot of Burton, was recalled to his own monastery, and installed as abbot of Bury on St. Edmund's day¹ (Nov. 20).

In 1232, the wife of Hubert de Burgh, the disgraced justiciary, found sanctuary at Bury.

About this time Gregory IX. (1227-1241) applied himself with zeal to the reformation of exempt houses, and to this end sent visitors among them. These visitors are said² to have been often insolent and unjust, and the monks were forced to appeal to Rome against their proceedings. Entrusted with such an appeal Abbot Richard went to Rome; and on his return, while awaiting at Pontigny,³ "ut parceret expensis," the answer of the Holy See, he was attacked by mortal illness (1234).

Henry, the prior of the convent, was elected abbot in 1235, and sat for thirteen years. The necessities of the Papacy in its struggle with the house of Hohenstaufen compelled it to seek resources in pecuniary levies from rich monasteries in many parts of Europe, and Bury came in for its full share of this tribute. As some sort of indemnity, the monks obtained bulls and briefs, both under Abbot Henry and under his successor, renewing and extending the former grants of exemption from episcopal control, and placing the monastery still more immediately under the Holy See.

A.D. 1215-1257. When the pressure became unusually heavy, they petitioned the king to shield them from the exactions of the pope, but this stood them in little stead. Matthew Paris relates¹ that, in 1240, the abbots of Battle and of St. Edmund's went on some such errand to the king. Henry, in reply, said to the legate who was present, "See, Sir Legate, these deceivers are blurting out papal secrets; deal with them as you like; I put one of my best castles at your disposal." Whereupon the abbots disappeared, the agrémens of prison life in a Norman castle being well understood.

In 1235 a royal charter granted Abbot Henry the right to hold two annual fairs at Bury, one outside the north, the other outside the south gate, and also a market at his manor of Melford.²

Taxter, one of the continuators of Florence, states under 1238 that in that year the first attempt was made by the Franciscans and Dominicans to establish themselves at Bury, but that receiving no support from Otho the legate, who was then at the monastery, they desisted from the endeavour.

In 1242 prior Gregory died, and was succeeded by Daniel; who dying in 1244, the next prior was Richard At-Wood. These particulars are given by Taxter.

In 1245 Abbot Henry had the gout, and was excused on that account by Innocent IV. from attendance at the council of Lyons.³

In the same year Queen Eleanor bore a son, to whom, out of reverence for the saint, the name of Edmund was given; he is known in history as Edmund Crouch-back.⁴

curious letter which Henry III. wrote to the convent on the occasion is given in this MS.; it will appear in the third volume of these memorials.

Henry died in 1248; and the monks agreed to elect Edmund de Walpole, and sent him for confirmation to the pope; nothing is said about the king's assent to the election. Innocent IV. raised objections, but finally agreed to accept Edmund de Walpole as his own nominee; at the same time the new abbot was required to hold himself responsible to one of the pope's creditors in the sum of 800 marks.¹

Edmund de Walpole, so far as can be judged from the few facts recorded of him, seems to have been a man of little capacity or energy. When the king took the cross in 1250, the abbot of Bury did the same, exposing himself thereby, says Matthew Paris,² to general derision; he ought to have understood that a monk, in virtue of his profession and his vows, is always carrying the cross of Christ.

In 1252, or about that year, Richard of Clare, seventh earl of Gloucester, began to set up a claim to St. Edmund's manor of Mildenhall. The aid of the pope was obtained, and a bull was issued in 1254 menacing the earl with excommunication.³ Litigation went on for many years; at last, by an agreement with Abbot Symon,⁴ Earl Richard renounced his claim to Mildenhall, receiving however several small parcels of land in Essex and Suffolk, and full jurisdiction in his court at Clare. The instrument is not dated, but Taxter states it to have been made in 1259.⁵

Prior Richard died in 1252, and was succeeded by Symon, afterwards abbot.⁶ Till now the election of a prior seems to have been made without much formality. In the full account given of the election of prior Herbert by Jocelin de Brakelond (I., 322, seq.) Abbot Samson is Now a regular scrutiny was adopted. The election was entrusted to a committee of three, the abbot and two monks, one nominated by him, the other by the convent, who took the votes of all the monks; as the result of the voting, Symon was declared to be prior.

An incident which occurred in 1253 showed the weakness of Abbot Edmund.¹ A quarrel had arisen between Archbishop Boniface and the Lincoln chapter, concerning the patronage of certain benefices. The archbishop threatened extreme measures, and gradually all the canons submitted, the archdeacon of Lincoln alone holding out. Finding himself in danger of incarceration, the archdeacon went to Bury, thinking he should find there a safe asylum. But the abbot either could not or durst not protect him, and he was thrown into prison. Afterwards he went to Rome, where the pope received him kindly, and promised him support; but he died on his way home.

Edmund de Walpole died on the 31st Dec., 1256.

We are thus brought to the fifth document in the present volume (p. 253), on the election of prior Symon to the abbacy.

It proceeded without hindrance; there was no schism in the convent; the king gave leave to elect; and when the choice was made, his consent to it does not seem to have been applied for. But a rule had now been adopted at Rome, that the abbot elect of an exempt monastery must repair personally to the Curia for confirmation. Symon therefore crossed the Alps; his election was confirmed, and he was blessed by Alexander IV. at Viterbo. The costs, Taxter says, were two thousand marks.

 The first part, written by some monk of Bury in a spirit strongly hostile to the friars, ends with the arrangement for their removal to Babwell, a site granted

Conven-
tual affairs,
1257-1326.

This tract, though not to be compared with the "Electio Hugonis" in respect of the insight to be obtained by means of it into the characters of individuals, shows by the very magnitude of the disasters which it describes, what were the wealth and social importance of the conventual body at this period. But before taking further notice of it, I propose to return to the beginning of the prelacy of Abbot Symon (1257), and continue the sketch of the history of the monastery which was broken off on p. xxxii. The period of seventy years now in question, embracing the last years of Henry III. and the whole of the reigns of Edward I. and Edward II., was generally prosperous for the monks of Bury. A mansion fit for the reception of royal persons was provided by the monks within the convent precinct, and hither Henry frequently came; indeed, Rishanger and others assert that he died here; but as this is not mentioned by Everisden, a Bury monk and a contemporary, it is probably untrue. His strong-minded son, whatever the cause may have been, was also firmly attached to the convent, paid it frequent visits, and held in it important parliaments.

The Franciscans, as has been seen, were obliged to migrate outside the boundary line marked by the four crosses in 1263. In giving them Babwell, the monks appear to have behaved with a certain measure of generosity; but from what is recorded of the proceedings of the friars during the great riots in 1327, it is manifest that they harboured resentment against the rich and powerful Benedictines, and readily sided with the populace against them.

In the commotion between Henry III. and the barons, the abbey, availing itself of its privilege of sanctuary, appears to have played for some time a neutral part. After the defeat and death of Simon de Montfort in 1265, many of the barons of his party sought and found shelter at Bury. "Tunc enim," says John of Oxnead (Oxenedes), borrowing apparently the words of Taxter, "in conspectu baromun pretiosa fuit libertas sancti Edmundi." But this state of things could not last long. The Earl de Warenne and William de Valence, the king's half brother, came to Bury in May 1266, and charged the abbot and the townsmen with favouring the king's enemies. The outlaws who had been disinherited after the battle of Evesham, and who were particularly strong and numerous in the eastern counties, found that Bury was a convenient centre where they could store or sell the plunder collected during the life of rapine to which they were reduced, and whence they could sally forth on fresh expeditions. Everisden, who perhaps witnessed what occurred, says that the king's officers "sternly summoning before them the abbot and the burgesses of the town, charged them with favouring the king's enemies, because the disinherited barons were in the habit of storing and selling there without hindrance their booty and the produce of their robberies. When the abbot [Symon de Luton], for himself and his convent made a fully sufficient answer, the officers turned the weight of the charge upon the burgesses, who, answering indiscreetly and without taking counsel with the abbot, made their own guilt apparent to the king's servants. There was also at that time a quarrel between the abbot and convent and the burgesses, because the said burgesses had been for a long time unruly and troublesome towards him and his bailiffs. And because they were now under the necessity of buying themselves off with money, and could not accomplish this successfully without taking counsel both with abbot and convent, they asked of them with tears

Being dislodged from Bury, the disinherited seized on the Isle of Ely in August 1266,² and held it till July of the following year, when the Prince Edward reduced them to submission, allowing them to have the benefit of the terms of the Dictum de Kenilworth.³ These harsh terms the outlaws of Ely had hitherto declined, hoping that by standing out they would get back their estates at a smaller sacrifice. On the 16th December 1266 they took Norwich by storm, carrying off with them seven carts full of plunder.⁴ It was on this occasion that Roger de Skerning, the newly elected bishop of Norwich, sought an asylum at Bury.⁵

⁵ Taxter refers to the flight of the bishop to Bury as if it happened in 1263, before the battle of Lewes, but the Cambridge MS. (Add. 850) though not giving the exact date, evidently intends to place the flight considerably later. Blomefield, in his History of Norfolk, II., 350 (quoted by Yates, p. 106) connects it, as I have done in the text, with the raid upon Norwich in 1266.

Taxter's Chronicle, of which the best MS. is Cott. Jul. A.1, ends in 1265. In certain MSS. it is followed by a continuation extending to 1295, which, as it agrees with the corresponding passages in a MS. at the Herald's Office (Arundel XXX.) the whole of which is ascribed to John de Everisden, (Hardy's Cat. III., 176) may be taken to be the work of that writer. This conclusion is confirmed by reference to Bale, who has a notice of John Everisden in his Summarium, where he assigns to him the authorship of a historical work on "Series temporum" beginning with the same word, "Fructuosum," as that with which the chronicle opens in the Herald's College MS. (f. 97). In the last-named MS. a few scattered notices continue the chronicle from the end of the 13th century to 1335, and this doubtless

In February 1267, Henry III. came to the monastery with the legate Ottoboni and a throng of courtiers, intending to put down the insurgents in the Isle of Ely. The legate publicly excommunicated them unless within the next fortnight they should submit to the king. Alarming rumours being spread about the town, the legate hastily returned to London. The king, early in March, left Bury for Cambridge, and thence conducted, but in his usual ineffectual manner, the blockade of Ely. A.D.

Everisden tells a story about some horses which a party of outlaws from Ely stole from the premises of the monastery at Bury, but were afterwards induced to restore, laying their swords at the same time on the royal martyr's shrine as an offering. The same story occurs in the Bodleian MS. 240 ; see infra, p. 362.

On the occasion of the great riots at Norwich in 1272, when the cathedral and priory were burnt, Henry (1 Sept.) repaired to Bury, and after a stay there of eleven days, went on to Norwich and took a sanguinary retribution on the rioters.

On the 16th November 1272, Henry III. died at Westminster (Everisden). If he had died at Bury, as stated by Rishanger, it is certain that Everisden, as belonging to the monastery, would have recorded the fact.

On the 17th April 1275 "the lord king [Edward I.] and queen came to St. Edmund's on pilgrimage, as they had vowed in the Holy Land. The lord king, with the assent of his council, after examining the muniments of the church of St. Edmund, granted is the reason why Bale speaks of Everisden's work as ending in 1336. But this can hardly have been so, for under 1255 the writer says of himself, "Hic attonus fui." In the MS. of Florence printed by the English Hist. Society, this chronicle breaks off at 1295. Bale says that Everisden was a monk and the cellarer of Bury; nothing else is known about him. See Luard's Introd. to Barth. de Cotton (Rolls series).

A.D. 1257-1326. "to the convent the right of inspecting weights and measures without any interference on the part of officials."¹

In 1264, under Abbot Symon, the first serious conflict between convent and town, as to their respective privileges, took place; and on account of the scenes of violence and rapine to which the unceasing friction between the two authorities eventually led, it seems desirable to investigate the subject somewhat closely. Naturally the monks regarded the town as existing merely for the glory and by the favour of St. Edmund, and for the good of his monastery; the conventual view was that "the town belonged to the convent and to the altar, and specially for the purpose of finding lights for the church," (vol. I., p. 277). But, no less naturally, the view of the burgesses of Bury was different; they were, they said, "in the king's assize, and would not be called to account, against the liberty of the town and their charters, for the holdings which they and their fathers held well and in peace, without claim or challenge, for a year and a day" (ib., p. 280). However, under Abbot Samson, the townsmen did not dispute that their privileges had been conceded by different abbots, and that the government of the town should be exercised by those whom the convent might appoint. It was accordingly agreed soon after Samson's election, that two new port-reeves² (præfecti) should be nominated in chapter, and this was done; also that the ancient horn, the mot-horn, for summoning the borough court (portmanne-mot), should be put into the hand of these port-reeves by the prior. The arrangement worked well for many years; later on, the sacrist was substituted for the prior, and was considered to appoint the port-reeves; "but in process of time," says Jocelin

² On the portreeve, see Stubbs' Constit. Hist. I., 404, note.

(I. p. 277), "I know not how new 'præfecti' were appointed elsewhere than in the chapter, and without the knowledge of the convent." In short, as they grew in wealth and numbers, the townsmen enlarged their privileges and diminished their rents and tributes; and though they were willing for a time to pay the convent 100 shillings by the year for the right of being undisturbed in their shops and stalls, they felt so strong after Samson had given them a charter, that they ceased paying the 100 shillings and never recommenced it (I. p. 281).

This charter of Samson's (printed by Battely, p. 155, from the Registrum Nigrum) has an immediate bearing on the events of 1264. It confirms to the town all the customs and liberties which it had in the times of Henry II. and his predecessors; and it declares that, with regard to watch and ward and the custody of the gates, the ancient custom is that the town shall furnish eight watchmen night by night, all the year round, two for each ward, and a larger number at Christmas and on St. Edmund's day; also that the town should find four gatekeepers for the four gates, the fifth or eastern gate being in the custody of the abbot. Nothing is said about the appointment of the port-reeves; but the duty of burgesses to sue and be sued in their own borough-court (portmanne-mot), instead of going outside the borough to the hundred-mot or the shire-mot, is insisted upon. What is evidently assumed is that the port-reeve is the abbot's servant and administers justice in the abbot's name.

Seventy years passed, and now, in 1264, the state of things was much changed. Among the burgesses a set of younger and more ardent men had risen to influence; in their conception the town was primarily their town, and made by their industry, not the abbot's; and they desired to form all citizens willing to join it into a guild or corporation, with a common horn, "despising the old horn of the whole community, which had been

A.D. 1257-1326. “ authorised from time immemorial.”¹ This “ old horn ” is evidently the mot-horn, which, in Samson’s time, the prior or sacrist used to put into the hands of the port-reeves, thereby installing them in their functions. Moreover, these young revolutionists showed little reverence for the convent or its servants; the latter they quarrelled with and beat, and often drove inside the monastery, the gate of which they attacked; as to the former, they went the length of sometimes shutting the north gate of the town against the abbot, and the south gate against the sacrist and the cellarer. From this it is clear that the plan by which the gates were kept under Samson’s charter had now broken down, and that a violent party among the burgesses could overawe the port-reeve and let in or keep out persons at their pleasure. One may conceive the amazement and indignation of Abbot Symon at finding himself barred out of his own town; St. Edmund’s town; the creation of the saint’s virtues; the visible seal of his martyrdom. It is as if, in these days, while the dean and canon of Christ Church were attending university sermon at St. Mary’s, the college servants at Christ Church were to rise in rebellion and bar the great gates into Tom quod, so that the august procession could not return. However, on this occasion, the young Cleons of the town had gone too far. Symon complained to the king, and asked for a commission of inquiry; and the older burgesses, fearing that the result of such a commission might be the loss or curtailment of their privileges, intervened with effect in the dispute. A “ concordia ” was arranged, by which the guild was abolished, and a sum of forty pounds in silver paid to the abbot in compensation for all violent and wrongful acts committed before Easter, 1264; while for similar acts committed since that date he was to have his legal remedy against the individuals guilty. All which the "communitas villæ" promised to help him to carry out, twenty-four of the principal burgesses taking their "corporal oath" to that effect.¹ A.D.

Although defeated, the unruly element in the town must have observed during these events how little physical force the convent had at its command to defend its property from a serious attack. Its servants could be scattered like chaff by a combined onslaught of the townsmen; the sheriff of Norfolk was a long way off, and the king at Westminster farther still. The "police protection" being thus glaringly deficient, it becomes no matter of surprise that a crisis like the deposition of Edward II. (1326-7), relaxing the hold of law and justice all over England, should have led to the formidable uprising of the townsmen against the authority of the convent, and the outrageous spoliation of its property, which are described at a later page.²

In April 1279 Abbot Symon died at his manor of Melford. Whereupon, says Everisden, "the king took possession, as well of the convent's portion [of the estates] as of the barony, a thing till then unheard of; and this portion belonging to the convent could not be wrung out of his hands either by entreaty or purchase. After a sufficient allowance had been made for the convent, and after the homages of the conventual manors had been taxed for the king's service, as well within Bury St. Edmund's as without, everything was placed at the disposal of John de Berewich, the king's attorney."³ In this way, under the pressure of public emergencies, the arrangement which had been made by Robert II., about 1106, providing that on the death of an abbot, only his own portion of the estates should be occupied by the king, not that assigned to the monks, was broken through.⁴

A.D. 1257-1326. John of Northwold, the hospitalarius or guest-master, was chosen by the monks, apparently with the king's consent, to succeed Symon, "John, the elect of St. Edmund's, after he had got through all his business at the court of Rome, having been blessed by the hand of Pope Nicholas [III.] himself, his barony having been restored to him by the lord king, and all other things, as well those belonging to the convent's portion as to his own, was on the day of the Holy Innocents [Dec. 28, 1279] solemnly received in his church. His expenses in the Roman journey had mounted up to eleven hundred and seventy-five marks ten shillings and ninepence" (Everisden); the credit allowed him by the convent having only extended, according to the Cambridge MS.,¹ to five hundred marks.

In 1279 the first Statute of Mortmain was passed; thus tersely and lucidly described in the Cambridge MS. (Add. 850, f. 209); "In the same year the lord king Edward determined, provided, and ordained that persons in religion should not in future acquire lands or tenements."

In 1281, at the cost of a payment to the king of 1,000*l.*, a new partition was made between the property of the abbot and that of the convent, "so that for the future they should in no case be confounded."²

In the same year the king, being about to make a punitive expedition into Wales, exacted large subsidies from his military tenants, and also from cities and monasteries. Everisden gives the particulars of this taxation, and adds that the abbot of St. Edmund's was leniently treated in the matter, for whereas an ordinary knight's fee was assessed at fifty marks, the abbot was only required to pay three hundred pounds for all the service due from him. This seems extraordinary leniency, for the abbot of St. Edmund's was still liable (infra, p. 323) to account to the king for forty knights holding under him. A.D.

The attachment of Edward to St. Edmund's must have been real, for again, in 1285, we find him at Bury, in execution of a vow. "The lord king of England, " with the queen and her three daughters, came to Bury " (Feb. 20) to pay the vows that he had made in his " Welsh war to God and St. Edmund, intending to con- " tinue his journey towards Norfolk next day."¹ On this visit he caused his marshal of weights and measures to inspect those in use at Bury, an interference which the monks thought was not in accordance with their charters; however, he ordered that all gains arising from such inspections should always be applied to the repairs and decoration of the shrine.

About the year 1291 the pressure of the king's demands both on ecclesiastical and monastic revenues was severely felt. Endeavouring to stop this constant drain, Abbot John produced his charters in Parliament, and protested against the king's exactions. Soon afterwards Edward had a dream, in which he thought that St. Edmund was treating him as he had treated Sweyn. This, according to the miracle-register of the convent, led to some change in his conduct.²

In 1292, "the lord king, coming to St. Edmund's on " the eve of the translation of St. Edmund (28 April), " with his son and daughters, celebrated the feast with " all solemnity; and remained, either at the abbey or at " Culford (one of the abbot's manors three miles distant " from Bury) for ten full days; and pursuing his jour- " ney, he proceeded to Walsingham," on his way to Scotland. "On his departure he gave us a charter, to " the effect that no one of his justices, under colour of

A.D. 1257-1326. " any past usurpation, should presume on any occasion
 " to sit within the banna leuca of St. Edmund."¹

In the same year a fresh dispute arose as to the custody of the town gates, complicated now by a claim on the part of the burgesses to elect an alderman as the head of their municipal government. The king sent down a commission of inquiry; and in the end, although the abbot was declared to be legally in the right, it was settled that the burgesses should, on Michaelmas day in each year, present a person to be confirmed in the office of alderman, and that the abbot should not, without reasonable and manifest cause of objection, refuse such confirmation. The alderman so elected was to present four proper persons to the sacrist to be employed as keepers of the four gates.²

In 1294, "on the feast of St. Edward, king and martyr (18 March) the lord king came with great devotion to St. Edmund's, and remaining there but for one night, left the convent table richly and abundantly provided for the next day."³ Further on⁴ Everisden appears to say that the abbot of St. Edmund's was accountable to the king for six knights only, but the MS. must be here corrupt. Had he been accountable for six knights only, his treatment at the time of the taxation of 1281 would not have been lenient, but harsh. A passage on p. 323, below, shows that in 1301 the abbot was still accountable to the king for forty knights' fees.

The scrutiny and inspection of all convents ordered by Edward this year, appeared a shocking indignity to Everisden. Even the house and town of St. Edmund, he bewails, known for a city of refuge for so many ages, "they violently profaned with their scrutiny."⁵

Returning from Scotland in 1296 after a successful campaign, Edward held a parliament at Bury St. Edmund's in November. The government was in urgent need of money; the cities and boroughs granted him the subsidy of an eighth; from others a twelfth was demanded. Nothing could be obtained from the clergy.¹ The archbishop, Robert Winchelsey, thought himself precluded from assenting to their being taxed by a bull lately received from Boniface VIII., ordering that no contribution from the ecclesiastical revenues should be made to any temporal prince without the consent of the pope. This was the famous bull "Clericis laicos."² But the final answer to the king's demand was to be made to the council at Westminster. When it came it was still in the negative, and Edward, much incensed, ordered that the clergy should be put out of the king's protection. This induced among them a more reasonable view of their obligations. While the contest lasted, the king's hand fell heavily on Bury. "On Ash Wednesday [1297] " all the goods of the abbot and convent were " confiscated, and all their manors seized, together with " the borough of St. Edmund's Bury."³

John of Northwold died on the 29th October 1301; the election of his successor, Thomas of Totyngton, is described in the tract on the subject printed further on.⁴ On this occasion letters passed between William the prior of Bury, and the abbot of St. Benet Hulme, which are preserved in the Cambridge MS. already often quoted.⁵ They make it extremely probable, if not certain, that the writer of that MS. was a monk, not of Bury, but of St. Benet Hulme, and explain what it would be otherwise difficult to understand, the appearance in his work of several passages giving a most unfavourable

A.D. 1257-1326. impression of the character of some of the Bury monks, and of the state of discipline among them.

A letter written by Abbot Thomas (whose term only lasted ten years) to Henry, abbot of St. Benet Hulme, shows that at this time St. Edmund's was burdened with a heavy debt, the pressure of which caused him to decline the invitation to be present at Henry's installation.¹

In 1305 the disputes between the convent and the town again called for the interference of the king's justices. The abbot charged the aldermen and burgesses with "withholding fines, tolls, &c.; resisting the officers employed in distraining; throwing stones upon and damaging the roof of the church; stoning the workmen employed in repairing the same; beating the servants of the abbey; interrupting vi et armis the bailiff of the convent in the discharge of his office, &c."² The justices imposed fines, and the quarrel was in some way smoothed over, but the friction and mutual dislike remained.

Thomas died on the 7th January 1312, and was succeeded by Richard de Draughton, a learned theologian and canonist. In his time the terrible rising of the townsmen against the convent took place, which is described in the tract "Deprædatio Abbatiaë" (infra, p. 323). This tract opens with an interesting sketch indicating the successive steps of the revolution caused by the landing of the queen in the Orwell in 1326. Great riots broke out in London, and were followed by disturbances at Bury, Abingdon, and other places. From the coast Queen Isabella moved on to Bury, arriving there on the 29th September. All this is mentioned in the tract, but the writer does not allude to a circumstance recorded in the Annales Paulini (p. 314) that in the abbey at Bury the queen found 800 marks that had been deposited there by the justiciary

Hervey de Stanton, and borrowed the money to defray the charges of her household. With regard to the "Deprædatio," the tract can be left to speak for itself; but a somewhat different view of the case, obtained from a perusal of the Cambridge MS., must not be left out of sight. At the beginning of the riots nearly half the monks in the monastery were away at different places in the country round Bury enjoying themselves.¹ This could not have happened under the government of Samson, nor under that of Hugo de Northwold; it certainly argued a great laxity of discipline, and was probably attended by other mischiefs of a grave character;² and since the general feeling in those days was that which Chaucer's lines express,— —that a monk, when he is cloisterlees,

Is likned til a fish that is waterlees;

(Prol. Cant. Tales).

the respect for the monks on the part of the people of Bury must have sunk to a low ebb, and probably this coolness interfered with any fervent or active expression of sympathy with them in their misfortunes.

After much delay, and great plunder and destruction of property, the abbot (p. 347) obtained a royal order addressed to Sir Robert Morley, sheriff of Norfolk, and Sir John Howard, directing them to put down the disturbances at Bury, and take cognizance of the criminal and illegal acts that had been committed.

¹ The mention of the holiday-keeping monks comes in in connexion with the adventures of William de Stowe, the sacrist of Bury, who, being in eminent peril of his life, took refuge in the monastery of St. Benet Hulme. "Thither came to him many of his fellow-monks, who were in the country for the sake of enjoying themselves with their friends

" (causa spatiandi cum amicis suis). For at the time aforesaid there were thirty-two monks enjoying themselves in different places outside the monastery." Add. 850, f. 210.

Riots of

This Sir Robert Morley was afterwards known as a brilliant knight and a gallant naval commander. He gave a splendid tournament at Stepney in 1331,¹ and in 1340, being in command of the northern English fleet, bore a distinguished part in the victory at Sluys.² In 1347 he assisted in dispersing the French convoy destined for the relief of the garrison of Calais³, and after much other good service, the particulars of which may be seen in Dugdale's Baronage, died in France, being then in attendance on the King, in 1360.

The narrative before us throws little light on the motives of the rioters for seizing and carrying off Abbot Draughton, and, after confining him at various places in England, deporting him to Diest in Brabant. The design seems to have emanated from John de Berton, whom the rioters had set up as alderman, in the place of his more pacifically disposed brother Robert. Anger against the abbot on account of his breach of the agreement which they had forced him to make with them seems to have been the chief cause of their proceedings; but how men of sense could imagine that he would observe such terms any longer than the duress lasted which had forced him to submit to them, it is difficult to understand. A tantalizing obscurity also rests upon the manner in which the abbot's place of exile was discovered, and his restoration to his friends brought about; only we are told that the counsel and aid of the faithful Ralph de Polsted were greatly instrumental in the successful result.

The reader is requested to cancel the note at p. 367, since it confounds together two distinct John de Beaumonts, the English knight of the name, son of Sir Henry de Beaumont, and John de Hainault, sire de Beaumont, brother of William count of Hainault and uncle to Queen Philippa. It is the English John de Beaumont to whom the story in the text relates, and the account of his death tallies with the statement of Murimuth (p. 124), that John de Beaumont was killed in a tournament at Northampton in 1342. His death is assigned to the same year in Dugdale's Baronage, when it appears he was only 24 years old.

For advice with reference to the composition of this volume I am much indebted to the kindness of the bishop of Oxford. Mr. Madan of the Bodleian Library and Mr. R. Poole of Balliol have, whenever I have had occasion to apply to either of them, given me all the assistance in their power. My excellent friend, the Rev. S. S. Lewis of Corpus College, Cambridge, has, since this volume was begun, passed from amongst us, and the light of his vigorous mind is no longer shed on a hundred knotty points of archæology. In editing the French poem, I have to acknowledge the kind assistance of Prof. Paul Meyer, director of the École des Chartes, of Prof. Atkinson of Trinity College, Dublin, and of Prof. O'Donnell of the Catholic University College in Stephen's Green. Mr. Bickley, of the MS. department of the British Museum, has placed his palæographical knowledge at my disposal in the kindest manner.

Sir Edward H. Bunbury, of Barton Hall, besides allowing me to examine the convent register in his possession, aided me to identify some of the places mentioned in the tract on the "Deprædatio Abbatizæ." Thus, in the "Eldaghe," "Eldhawe," of pp. 307, 345, he at once recognised Eldo House, which, though not marked on common maps, appears on the six-inch Ordnance sheet, and is some two miles to the north of Bury; Neuton (p. 342) he identified with the present Nowton, a village to the south of the town; and he suggested that the "Kateshil" of p. 113 is more probably the "St. Edmund's Hill" of the present day (an eminence just outside the town, on the road to Barton), than the modern "Cateshall," the site and appearance of which do not correspond to the description given.

Mr. Dewing, now residing at Nowton, has again assisted me with valuable suggestions bearing on the architectural history of the abbey. Mr. Beckford Bevan, of Bury, kindly facilitated my gaining access to the ancient abbey papers preserved among the archives of the corporation. Mr. J. R. Thompson, the author of a Life of St. Edmund, and the Rev. T. B. Parkinson, gave me much useful assistance.

Observations on the miracle-register of the abbey in Bod. 240, and an examination of the claim of the church of St. Sernin, at Toulouse, to have come into the possession of the relics of St. Edmund in 1216, are deferred to the concluding volume.

^a The statement in the text appears to be confused. St. Oswald's day is the 29th Feb.; but the year in which Samson was elected was not leap-year, and the narrative of Jocelin (vol. i. 227) seems to fix his election to the 21st February at Bishop's Waltham. A week later, at Marwell or Merewell, a small village in the Isle of Wight, near Carisbrooke, where Henry of Blois, bishop of Winchester, had founded a college of priests, he received the blessing from the bishops, as stated in the text.

^b See Hoveden, iii. 8 (Rolls ed.).

^c Taxter, in his Chronicle, printed by Mr. Thorpe in his edition of Florence of Worcester, seems to quote this passage; which, however, is wrongly dated 1189; the expulsion of the Jews from Bury was in 1190. See vol. i. 249 of the present work.

Februarii.^e

^a The entry about William Longchamp also properly belongs to 1190. The "regionale concilium" (*Ymagine*s, p. 656, Twysden) which he summoned to Westminster was held on the 15th October; and his flight to Normandy, according to the same authority, was on the 29th Oct. 1191.

^b This entry about the siege of Acre seems to belong to 1191 more properly than to 1190, since the kings Philip and Richard, who must be meant by "magnates," did not land in Palestine till the former year.

^c Hoveden and Matthew Paris date the building of the "Chateau Gaillard," at Andelys in 1196.

^d The affair of William with the Beard also belongs to 1196; see Diceto, Hoveden, and Matthew Paris.

^e The passage Alwoldus . . . Februarii is not to be found in the Decem Scriptores; it occurs only in two MSS. of Diceto, and is given in a note in the Rolls edition (ii. 153). That Ethelwold, bishop of Winchester in the time of Edgar, brought back monks specifically to Coventry, is a fact not mentioned elsewhere; but that he was generally instrumental in turning out secular canons and substituting monks was known from the statements of Florence, Huntingdon, and others. Taxter has this passage, partly in the same words, under 1198. Jobertus was prior of Wenlock; see Annal. de Theokesb., p. 56 (Rolls ed.). On Samson's part in the restoration of the Coventry monks, see i. 295-6.

^a The method of imposition of this tax of five shillings on the carucate (at that time passing as a hundred acres, Hoveden, iv. 47, Rolls ed.) is fully described by the historian just named. But for the statement that in certain counties a round sum of twenty-five pounds on each hundred was accepted (as if on an estimate that the average acreage in these counties was 10,000 acres per hundred) our author is alone responsible. An examination of the machinery for levying the tax described by Hoveden will show that this modification could have been easily introduced. See Stubbs' Const. Hist., i. 510 (quoted by Dr. Liebermann).

^b Our author, having now no more help from Diceto, whose *Ymagine*s come to an end early in 1200, often quotes from a source common to him and Roger of Wendover. Dr. Liebermann has explained (Ungedruckte Geschichtsquellen, p. 101) why it cannot be reasonably held that Roger, though later in date, copied from our author. The common passages are here printed in small type.

Wendover, i. 311.

^a Taxter mentions this exemption, but Hoveden and Wendover do not allude to it. If historical, it was probably connected with the recent heavy demand made by the pope on the English clergy for the support of the crusade (Hoveden, iv. 108).

^b Blanche, daughter of John's sister Eleanor and Alfonso of Castile, married Louis, son of Philip II. See Miss Norgate's Hist. of the Angevin Kings, ii. 395.

^c This expedition to Gascony, as Dr. Liebermann says, is not mentioned by the chroniclers, but is proved to have taken place by the Itinerary of John, deduced by Mr. Hardy from the Patent Rolls.

^d In her learned and valuable work just quoted, Miss Norgate (ii. 399), speaking of John's marriage, says, "No one gives a date." She had overlooked Taxter, who here, as elsewhere, follows our author.

^e A word or words omitted; either "appulsus," as suggested by Liebermann, or "mari se committens," would suit the sense. John (Itinerary, 1201) was at Valognes, near Cherbourg, on the 1st, and at Fremantle, near Winchester, on the 6th October.

^f The Itinerary shows that John was at Bury on Monday, the 19th March. This visit is not mentioned by Jocelin de Brakelonde; on the other hand, our author says nothing of the earlier visit in 1199, which Jocelin notices (vol. i. p. 314).

^a This meeting between the kings, according to our author, was held "post clausum Pascha," by which perhaps may be understood a fortnight after Easter, which fell this year on the 14th April. John, who was at Orival on the 28th, and at Pont de l'Arche on the 30th April (both places are near Rouen), was in a position to hold such a meeting at the time indicated; for Guletune (Le Goulet) is near Vernon-sur-Seine, within the French border. Wendover makes the interview to have occurred in Lent; but on that occasion, according to our author, envoys, "internuntii," met, not principals.

^b Beginning from this point, Taxter's entry for the year is a summary of what is here given. Hugo was afterwards abbot of Bury.

Fuit igitur infra præfati castrum ambitum conflictus durissimus, sed . . . in brevi finitus; capti sunt etenim Arturus et plusquam ducenti milites de nobilioribus Pictaviæ cum eo, ita quod nec unus pes eorum evasit. Ligatos igitur in manicis ferreis et compedibus, vehiculisque bigarum impositos, novo et inusitato genere equitandi transmisit rex partim in Normanniam, partim in Angliam, ut fortioribus municipiis absque metu evasionis custodirentur. ^a According to the Itinerary, John was at Portsmouth on the 13th and at Dorchester on the 16th June; these dates are consistent with his landing near Wareham on the 15th. The "Julii" of Wendover, followed by Paris, is therefore an error.

^b Of the archbishop's palace at Teynham there are still some ruins standing.

^c Here again our author is right in his dates, and Wendover wrong. John was at La Rochelle on the 8th June. After going on board ship at Portsmouth on the 26th May, he remained some days in the Isle of Wight; for he dates from Yarmouth between the 28th May and the 1st June.

^b Taxter (p. 170) borrows this sentence almost verbatim.

^c This seems to be the same case as that of Geoffrey, archdeacon of Norwich, whose cruel punishment is placed by Wendover (ii. 53) under 1209. Wendover's date appears to be wrong; and the name of the archdeacon of Norfolk in 1209 was not Geoffrey. See Dr. Liebermann's note.

^d It appears (infra, 105–111) that the king extorted from the monks during the interdict 4,000 marks. Taxter does not mention this, but says that the townsmen of Bury, quamvis invitati, promised the king an aid. It was given, and they forbore (p. 114) to press for repayment.

tionibus cedentibus in negotio, volentes procedere elegerunt communi consilio tres sub nomine Trinitatis, qui præstito sacramento super corpus Domini et super reliquias ibidem præsentibus, quod non dimitterent pro prece vel pretio, odio vel amore, nec pro morte nec pro vita, seu pro aliquo temporali emolumento, quin secundum conscientiam suam eligerent de toto conventu septem, de fidelioribus et melioribus et discretioribus, ad faciendam electionem, qui non essent suspecti quod magis essent familiares unis quam aliis, nisi propter Deum et vitæ meritum. Electis vero tribus, videlicet A[lbino] suppriori, J[ocelino] elemosinario, et R[icardo] precentore, præstito super corpus Domini sacramento, sicut superius habetur, exierunt foras, conventu tamen in capitulo remanente, et conferentes ad invicem de singulis, moresque omnium et fidelitatem revolventes, elegerunt Robertum sacristam, magistrum Henricum de Ely, Joscelinum de Altari, quondam celerarium, Johannem de Laneham firmarium, Hugonem subcelerarium, magistrum Thomam tertium priorem, et magistrum T[homam] de Walsingh[am], ut essent electores. Sed mox ut sacrista inter alios fuisset nominatus,¹ N[icholaus] et R[icardus] appellationem renovaverunt contra eundem. Unde communi conventus consilio, eodemque consentiente, ut tamen in rem procederent; delectus fuit sacrista, appositusque fuit per conventum camerarius in loco sacristæ. Quibus electis, juraverunt super corpus Domini quod fideliter scrutatis singulorum conscientis et examinatis, tam ipsorum septem quam et totius conventus, unum de misericordioribus et benignioribus et discretioribus ad abbatiam regendam et pastorale officium, secundum regulam Sancti Benedicti, sive de seipsis sive de toto conventu, salva tamen conscientia eligerent. mento, totus conventus juravit versa vice, priore incipiente, aliis omnibus singillatim sequentibus, quod quemcunque de conventu præfati septem eligerent, pro electo sine contradicto haberent. Quo facto finitum est capitulum. Et convenientes septem in capellam Sancti Sabæ, cœperunt illo die officium examinationis injunctum prosequi; duo tamen ex illis septem singulorum examen et nomina in scriptum redigentes. Examinatis quidem omnibus, moribusque singulorum et conversationibus virtutibusque inter se collatis et ponderatis, adqueverunt in unam personam. Qui mox ingressi capitulum petierunt literas de rato ad confirmandum sacramentum a conventu factum, scilicet quod quem septem præsentarent pro electo haberent. Quod quidem assensu omnium et voto concessum est. Exeuntibus¹ de capitulo cum literis de rato, modicoque facto intervallo regressi, nominaverunt voce jocunda fratrem Hugonem de Norwolde, virum honestæ conversationis et bene morigeratum, virum in utroque Testamento sufficienter edoctum, virum gratia et misericordia repletum, benignum, omnique amaritudine destitutum, sobrium et castum, modestum, pium, quietum, et in exterius agendis prudentem et probatum. Quo electo et nominato, et pro ejus electione causa canonice facta, omnes singillatim in osculum pacis irruentes benedicebant Deum. Eumque in sinistra parte chori in loco eminentiori juxta priorem collocantes, appellarunt ne quid fraudis vel doli instinctu maligno seu machinatione alicujus contra eandem electionem fieret. Completa sunt ista tali modo in crastino Transfigurationis Domini in capitulo Sancti Ædmundi.

Electo itaque venerabili fratre H[ugone] in crastino Transfigurationis, quod est vij. idus Augusti, summo mane iter arripuit versus curiam ad perquirendam gratiam domini regis super electione facta, comitantibus gratulationis super cartam extremam festinanter exposuit. Qui mox regressi sunt omnes domum, præterquam Electus, et magister T[homas] de Walsingh[am], et J. de Laneh[am]. Venientes vero domum statim dominus prior et sacrista, simulque totus conventus, introierunt capitulum; factoque summo silentio, præcepit dominus prior ut sacrista quæ facta fuerant ad curiam et audita conventui detegeret. Ille vero, non brevi utens eloquio, narravit quomodo a magnatibus curiæ jam famæ dispendium propter Electum incurrissent, et non solum illi, sed etiam totus conventus; dicens, ubi membrum scandalizatur, ibi et totum corpus. Audientes autem hæc, commota est pars magna. Erigens tandem se dominus J[ocelinus] elemosinarius petiit audientiam. Prorumpens quidem in verba, voce flebilica recitare cœpit, quomodo minus circumspecte quam debuit facta est electio, et maxime de carta conventus de rato, contra regium assensum et ejus usitatam consuetudinem, et periculum quod inde imminere credebat proponens, ad hoc utens ut cartam aliquo modo revocaret, appellavitque pro statu regio et ejus usitata consuetudine, salva electione licet sero. Quamobrem factus est illo die tumultus magnus in populo, et sic assurgens conventus incipiendo Verba mea a capitulo discesserunt.

In crastino vero ante capitulum intravit sacrista ad priorem, ducens secum A[lbinum] subpriorem, atque R[icardum] precentorem, et J[ocelinum] elemosinarium, et A[dam] infirmarium, et P. de Wrthstede, et multos alios; petiitque ut literæ quædam ab eis compositæ pro salvatione domus, ut illi asserebant, et ordinatæ, sub sigillo conventus munitæ, nostro dirigerentur electo. Quibus cum gratanter dominus prior adquevisset, absentans se tamen illo die a capitulo, reliquit domino A[lbino] suppriori omnem potestatem secundum regulam Sancti Benedicti in subjectis exercendam et ultra; scilicet ut quoscumque reperiret huic consilio repugnantes sub anathematis sententia vinctos innodaret; factumque est ita. Peractis omnibus ad ordinis rigorem spectantibus, præterit R[icardus] precentor literas memoratas a magnatibus et sapientibus compositas ut ipse asserebat, petiitque ut perlectæ et sub sigillo conventus impressæ nostro dirigerentur Electo. Fuit autem hic tenor literarum: "Mandamus tibi quatinus visis literis domum venire omni occasione postposita festines. Habemus enim quoddam negotium terminandum, quod sine tua præsentia non potest duci ad effectum." Quibus perlectis, facta est inter eos dissensio magna, eo quod ex parte conventus talia sine consensu eorum Electo proposuissent transmittere. Et assurgens magister T[homas] tertius prior, cum tribus sociis secum astantibus, appellavit ne quid in præjudicium Electi fieret. Intuens eum unus de parte sacristæ repulit, et manus injecit in eum, scilicet Taillehaste. R[icardus] vero precentor, existimans quod non essent plures in congregatione quam isti tres, qui fidem Deo et sacramento in pleno capitulo facto, præsentem Dominico corpore et attestante, servassent, circumvit conventum, singulos singillatim conveniens et interrogans cujus vel qualis esset opinionis aut sententiæ; et inventi sunt illo die in capitulo numero quadraginta viri, cum septem examinatoribus, pleni fide et veritate, qui pro morte nec pro vita a via veritatis et ab Electo a Deo sibi dato nulla ratione nec velle nec posse recedere promiserunt. Unde venerabilis A[lbinus] supprior præmeditatam super eos intulit excommunicationis sententiam, quam, ut postea, in pleno capitulo, ad præsentiam coram eisdem ductus, pœnituit se dedisse.

Dissension among the monks.

The sacrist's party agree that he and the precentor shall take the letter.

Illo autem die post prandium convenerunt sacrista et R[icardus] precentor et alii quinque in domum prioris, super hoc quod literas prædictas sigillo prioris munitas sub pristina forma ex parte conventus R[obertus] sacrista et R[icardus] precentor electo deferrent; factumque est ita. Concilium autem quinto die sequenti apud Lundoniam præfixum erat. Venientes vero apud Leses Electum ibi invenerunt; sed illo die ei communicare noluerunt.

Mane autem facto R[obertus] sacrista et R[icardus] precentor coram domino archiepiscopo se ingerentes, Electum instanter accusare cœperunt, nitentes ejus canonicam improbare electionem, quæ, secundum quod proposuerant, minus canonica quam debuit facta fuit; et quod plures de domo in generali examinatione fuerunt nominati ad officium pastorale et ad abbatiam quam Electus; et quod septem examinatores per vires probarent. Illis autem in eodem loco super hoc persistentibus, venit Electus tanquam a Deo missus. Qui cum ad dominum archiepiscopum humili præmissa salutatione esset ingressus, dixit ad eum archiepiscopus, "Frater, quid est hoc quod audio de te? aurum tuum versum est in scoriam. Ecce, in quantis isti te accusant." Et incipiens narravit ei omnia quæ a duobus jam præsentibus de eo erant persecuta. Ille vero hiis auditis, potius admiratione quam stupore repletus, humiliter petiit ut ibi coram eo ne diutius protelaretur; rei veritati perquisitæ finem imponeret. Dominus autem archiepiscopus, præ tantis diversisque negotiis tota die emergentibus, coram eo circumspiciens non posse istud determinari, statuit eis iudices, videlicet duos clericos, qui in crastino Nativitatis beatæ Mariæ apud Sanctum Sept. 9. Ædmundum venientes, rei veritatem subtilius indagarent, et cognita veritate auctoritate archiepiscopali finem imponerent. Quibus conventui recitatis, conventus nimis moleste pertulit quod scrutinium super viros religiosos per manus clericorum, semper ad insidias eis assidentium, aliqua conditione exerceretur.

Quid plura? in crastino voluit dominus R[obertus] sacrista et R[icardus] precentor quædam proponere, absente Electo. Sed sanior pars conventus, licet non Proposal of the sacrist to transact certain business;

ætate maturior, nequaquam consensit, ut eo absente ille vel alius aliqua quæ ad ejus spectabant electionem proponeret. Facta est illa hora dissensio magna et divisio, ita quod, a capitulo sine Verba mea et animarum absolutione discedentes, una pars, quæ cum sacramento firmiter et inflexibiliter stetit, ad Electum in domum prioris confugit, altera vero quæ sacristæ erat, reclusit se in capella infirmorum, hostiis reseratis, et custodibus ad hostia positis. Ibi vero super hiis sollicite tractantes, mandaverunt Electum per dominum A[lbinum] suppriorum et J. de Laneham, ut ad illos solus venisset, nullo alio de suis secum comitante; ad quod fideles ejus noluerunt assentire, nisi omnes secum possent interesse. Talibus R[oberto] domino sacristæ et aliis ibi exspectantibus renunciatis, discesserunt a capella psallendo Verba mea.

A second attempt to persuade the king to consent to the election fails.

Evolutis paucis diebus et tumultu aliquantulum sedato, et contramandatis clericis supramemoratis, Electus iterato præsentatus est apud Nothingh[am] per dominum priorem et R[obertum] sacristam, et R[obertum] camerarium, et magistrum T[homam] tertium priorem, et magistrum Nicholaum. Sed ibi per aliquot dies morantes, cum se nichil aspicerent ad tempus proficere, domum reversi sunt infecto negotio. Factumque est crastinum, et introeuntes in capitulum, facta est mentio per magistrum Nicholaum et magistrum Thomam et alios plures super absentia electi, plurima proponentes quod ejus præsentia magis expediret quam ejus absentia. Hucusque enim, postquam dominus H[ugo] electus fuit, a capituli ingressu privabatur.^a Quod tandem concessum est, et vocatus collocatus est in dextra parte capituli juxta priorem in sede superiori.

Processu vero temporis venit dominus S[tephanus] archiepiscopus apud Sanctum Ædmundum, ob devotionem et venerationem ipsius, vigilia passionis ejusdem. In crastino quidem post diem passionis venit in capitulum, et ibi, refocillans verbo Dei gregem beati martyris, exhortabatur ut unanimes in domo Dei permansissent, dicens, “ si separabiles et superabiles, et “ si inseparabiles insuperabiles usque reperiemini.” Finito tandem sermone super hoc, qualis est rector civitatis, tales et inhabitantes in ea, flexis genibus corruit dominus H[erbertus] coram eo, rogans humiliter et supplicans pro Electo. Postquam erexit se, R[obertus] camerarius et¹ recitavit quomodo electio secundum Deum processa est; rogavitque ut ob amorem Dei et ejus Genetricis, et gloriosi patroni nostri Ædmundi, partes suas fideles interponeret ad gratiam domini J[ohannis] regis captandam, quia non erat repugnantia, nisi in assensu solummodo domini regis. Steterunt omnes etiam cum eo, rei veritatis sicut proposuit testimonio. Dominus vero archiepiscopus ob unitatis gaudium et integritatis, perhibentis quod viderat et audierat, vultu jocundo respondit, et promisit sacramento, quod non minus pro causa nostra pro loco et tempore staret quam pro sua, quæ tamen specialiter eum tangere videbatur. His vero rite peractis, in capitulo comite Rogero et multis aliis tam monachis extraneis quam clericis et laicis existentibus, relinquens conventui benedictionem discessit, iter tendens versus Radinges. Ibi enim die Sancti Nicholai proxima sequente præfixum erat concilium generale.

parte domini regis, videlicet priori, sacristæ, et R[icardo] precentori. Quarum literæ domini prioris in pleno capitulo lectæ erant; aliæ vero nec auditæ nec visæ ab aliquo fuere. Tenor autem literarum prioris hic erat: “Miramur quod tantum distulistis firmam nostram de abbacia; unde mandamus ut visis literis ad nos inde responsuri venire festinetis.” Alias literas suscepit R[obertus] sacrista, ut scilicet prior, R[obertus] sacrista, et R[icardus] precentor, visis literis, domino regi apparerent, responsuri quare firma ejus de abbacia tam esset protelata. Præparantibus se, scilicet priore et R. sacrista et R. precentore, domino regi in concilio apparere, perquirebant utrum Electus ibi veniret necne? Quibus cum respondisset se ire, commoti sunt; et cum pluribus sententiis, pariterque objectionibus, propositis viderent iter ejus non posse impedire,—verumptamen et cum antea semper palliant quod interius non habebant, ut scilicet quod ore in antea prætendebant, in corde non habebant, diutius eum blandis pertrahere volentes sermonibus,—respondit sacrista se esse læsæ majestatis reum si a domino rege perciperetur Electo in itinere associari. Illic timore trepidans et formidine ubi non fuit timor, concepto jam firmiter in animo suo, et fidelium amicorum usus consilio, ut se domino Nicholao legato^a et sanctæ Romanæ ecclesiæ cardinali in concilio se præsentaret, rogavit humiliter, qui ratione imperare debuit, ut in itinere saltem domino priori propter scandalum læsæ unitatis vitandum, posset associari, plurimas proponens rationes, et non sine ratione carentes,¹ quod potius simul apparere quam divisim ire possent et decentius. Unde dominus H[erbertus] prior, consilio aquilonis a quo panditur omne malum suffultus et jam bene obnubilatus, minus circumspecte quam debuit et decuit, dedit responsum, in hoc ei nec posse nec audere condescendere. Quibus auditis, et jam omnibus ad iter suum spectantibus paratis, assumpto secum R[oberto] camerario et J[ohanne] de Laneh[am] firmario, plenam in domino habentes fiduciam, secure et audacter dominum E[ustachium] Eliensem apud quoddam manerium suum, scilicet Dittun, adierunt. Quos ut domnus Eliensis vidit, præ gaudio assurgens eis suscepit in oscula. Prosequentes tandem inter cætera causam rei gestæ ordinatim et exponentes, consuluit venerabilis Elyensis, ut Electus cum duobus sociis secum existentibus venerabilibus N[icholao] legato et S[tephano] archiepiscopo, Elyense episcopo duce, in concilio se præsentaret. Spem habuit in Domino certam, et non de ejus misericordia diffidens, quod isti duo gratia Dei interveniente iram domini regis, quam per filios degeneres contra electionem suam satis Deo dignam et causam ecclesiæ in animo conceperat, mitigarent. Ille vero vir erat miræ simplicitatis et mansuetudinis; in his omnibus non est commotus, neque immutatus est vultus ejus. Consilio tandem domini Elyensis utpote sano inclinans, profectus est apud Rading.

Veniente vero apud Rading, perrexit obviam domino N[icholao] legato, decem fere leucas extra Radinges; et se osculantes invicem perrexerunt tribus pæne milliaribus simul loquentes, nullo alio mediante. Dominus autem prior, pariterque sacrista, propter magnas expensas, ut creditur, evitandas, et ut se exonerarent de censu abbatiae, de quo paulo ante summonitionem super terminorum protelatione per breve domini regis acceperant, apud Londoniam iter suum deflexerunt. R[icardus] autem precentor solus apud Radinges ex parte eorum remansit, audiens, ut dicebatur, et expectans, quo fine illa summonitio clauderetur. Ingerente se postmodum coram rege per comitem Salesberre, præcepit ei dominus rex, ut legato apud Sanctum Ædmundum properanti, ibique Natale suum super custum domini regis sollempniter celebranti, associaretur; factumque est feria iij. instanti post festum Sancti Nicholai apud Rading. Dominus vero prior et sacrista, apud Londoniam nuntium suum expectantes, postquam tale susceperant mandatum, cum tota pecunia quam secum attulerant domum sunt reversi, præparantes se ad suscipiendum legatum.

The monks in procession receive the legate.

Veniente quidem Domino legato, die Sancti Thomæ apostoli ante Natale, honorifice ad processionem susceptus est ad portam ecclesiæ, precentore incipiente summæ Trinitati. Quo sollempniter ab omnibus prosecuto, pervenit ante magnum altare, et facta oratione prosecutus est in cameram, præparans se ad ordines faciendos; fecit enim illo die ordines apud Sanctum Ædmundum. In crastino vero venit in capitulum, et prædicabat verbum Dei super hoc, Vigilate animo, etc.

He preaches in the chapter-house.

After the sermon the affair of the election is discussed.

Peracto quidem sermone, præcepit ut populus ibi assistens amoveretur; habuit enim quoddam conventus secretum proferendum, quod nullo alio licuit communicare. Amotisque omnibus, facta est mentio super electione. Et exsurgentes sex examinatores, prostrati in medio, voce clara modum electionis et susceptionis et appellationis pro Electo et ejus electione cœperunt exponere, nihil tamen omittentes de contingentibus. Quibus expositis, surrexit precentor in medio, et dixit quod primo appellavit contra, primamque vocem in omnibus præcentoria dignitate sibi vendicabat, abhibendo¹ etiam de electione, quod sex examinatores potius simplicitate quam fraude vel dolo fuisse credebat circumventos, supplicans ut ob honorem ejusdem curiæque Romanæ, subtilius per examinatores septem et totius rei veritatem perquisisset, et veritate cognita determinasset; si tamen ad honorem regis et regni cedere properasset. Sacrista autem et ejus parti inclinantes, licet sacramenti sui veritati obviantes, illud idem quod precentor proposuerat protestando petierunt. Major pars conventus et sanior veritati cum sex examinadoribus inflexibiliter perstiterunt et immobiles.

Illo vero die abstulit legatus conventui solitas misericordias.

In crastino quidem exurgens magister Nicholaus recapitulavit coram legato excellentissimo idiomate modum electionis et appellationis, et improbavit precentorem non debere ulla ratione magis primam vocem sibi usurpare in aliquo loco, præterquam in ecclesia, quam aliquem alium. Narratione sua tali modo super electione completa et improbatione, erexit se precentor in medio, et dixit, "Domine legate, Boloniam non vidi, nec leges scio." Plures autem, putantes se Babiloniam protulisse, in tantam prosilierunt derisionem ut præ confusione dominus precentor a causa incepta penitus desisteret. Sacrista autem aliqua ratione cupiens eum suffulcire, cœpit proponere quod in carta conventus de rato subintelligebatur assensus regius. Et ut hoc verum esse judicaretur ab omnibus, steterunt testimonium perhibentes Albinus supprior, qui hoc idem affirmabat, Henricus, qui diffamare nitebatur Electum, Ædmundus, qui dixit, in eo quod Electus promotionem suam

The legate proceeds with the investigation.

Dominus autem legatus, subtilius rei veritatem cupiens indagare, præcepit textum deferri, super quem prior totusque conventus cum septem examinadoribus juraverunt, quod cum requisiti essent de statu ecclesiæ et electione verum confiterentur, nec omitterent pro amore vel odio, prece vel pretio, neque pro aliquo temporali emolumento, quin veritatem dicerent; factumque est ita. Conventus quidem exiens de capitulo, vocatus est prior causa examinandi. Tanta vero fuit mora in examinatione super inquisitis, ut illo die ab hora matutinali usque ad horam reficiendi, qua conventus intravit in refectorium, non erant examinati nisi prior et Electus. In crastino quidem, scilicet vigilia Natalis Domini, residui de numero septenario examinati, eorumque examen, pariterque prædictorum, in scriptum est redactum.

Jan. 29.

The king is angry when he hears of the mission of Thomas; the sacrist visits, but cannot pacify him.

Sed cum hoc dominum regem diu latere non posset, accedentes quidam ex suis exposuerunt ipsi regi secundum ordinem rem gestam, et quomodo magister Thomas esset pro electione nostra transfretatus. His vero sermonibus pro certo compertis, iratus est dominus rex valde et turbatus. Interim quidem veniens sacrista ad curiam domino regi, extra præmissa, ex parte domini prioris et quam humili salutatione se præsentavit. Dominus vero rex, præ magna ira quam de magistro Thoma conceperat nondum animo sedatus, specialiter benedixit priorem, omnesque alios de domo sine ulla exceptione maledixit, impropere eidem sacristæ, per commune consilium contra libertates ejus esset magister Thomas transfretatus. Sacrista vero, volens domino regi satisfacere, cœpit jurare et detestari quod ille, nec alius pro causa Electi promovenda per eum, unquam extra domum pedem extulerat. Sed cum sic nec sacramento neque alia re ad præsens cognovisset gratiam domini regis captare, neque animum ejus ab ira concepta posse levigare, quin eundem sa-

Dominus autem Wyntoniensis, ob amorem et reverentiam gloriosi patroni nostri, sinistra tamen benedictione interposita, coram domino rege pro negotiis domus, et maxime pro coyn impetrando, audacter se obtulit, exponens ei negotia domus pro quibus sacrista venerat, excusatione de magistri Thomæ itinerisque consensu electionis unicæ præmissa.¹ Sed cum hæc omnia rite a domino Wyntoniensi, licet in vanum, essent prosecuta, dominus rex talia eidem sacristæ per dominum Wyntoniensem destinavit responsa; “Si sacrista conventusque suos cupiunt ut eos in negotiis variis exaudiam, et ad gratiam meam reformentur pristinam, satisfaciant mihi de electione secundum antiquam consuetudinem et semper usitatum; sin autem, incassum ulterius pro aliquo negotio, licet minimo, ad me redibunt.”

The sacrist asks Peter des Roches to speak to the king; he does so.

The king states the conditions on which he will receive the convent again into favour.

Cum hoc sacrista percepisset, et se in voluntate nihil proficere circumspexisset, inanibus jam sumptibus deductis omnino, penitus infecto negotio domum reversus est. Veniens quidem domum die Purificationis accessit ad complices suos, præmeditatum ejus errorem contra sacramenta sua foventes, et ut eosdem ad majorem protraheret malitiæ accensionem, apposuit lignum et stipulas, verba inferendo videlicet comminatoria ex parte domini regis universis electionem secundum Deum in venerabilem fratrem H[ugonem] factam foventibus, aliis vero gratiam suam in omnibus suis agendis consequi et benevolentiam; hæc enim proposita majoris constantiæ in malo causa fuerunt. Hor. Ep. i.
2, 69.

The sacrist puts up Richard Calvus, or De Sterteford, to preach against the election.

Effuso enim hac de causa metallo, replicato et sæpius repetito, insuper et se cum eisdem in omni loco, ubicumque electioni nocere credebat, præsentante, cum per hoc ejus cordi non suffecit perverso, protraxit intra se quod virum ex suis, Ricardum scilicet Calvum, die Jovis ante Pascha populo faceret prædicare, ut prædicando per circumlocutiones et exempla super electione corda audientium a veritate cognita et per universum orbem jam divulgata distorqueret. Sed, sicut ait apostolus, nihil absconditum quod non revelabitur. Cum et hoc aures fideles jam fama perflaret ventilans, et eo jam bis in capitulo sermocinante, ut eo coram populo audacior reperiretur, providendo fidelium consilio et salubri erexit se H[ugo] de Theford, appellavitque contra eum in capitulo ad legatum Angliæ, ne ulterius, propter malitiam cognitam sæpiusque expertam, et diffamationem, et famosum libellum quem idem Calvus abbati de Bello-loco tradiderat, sermocinaret. Stetitque secum Ricardus de Flammeville ad ejus confirmandam appellationem; factusque est super hac appellatione tumultus magnus in populo perverso. Conferentes tandem inter se, si deferendum esset appellationi, timore potius quam reverentia ipsius legati appellationi detulerunt. Sacrista vero, licet non sine gravi cordis amaritudine, cum in locutorio parvo ante capitulum iterato præ cordis angustia super his a suis peteret consilium, omniaque eis super casu præsentis acciditura, pariterque pro et contra, coram eis satis allegaret sufficienter, appellationi deferre timore potius quam amore decreverunt legati. Ita tamen ut idem sacrista, ad suorum corda infidelium corroboranda, baculum scilicet prædicatorium illo die assumeret; factumque est ita.

Et extrahente quidem sacrista sermone ad hoc, The sacrist preaches a sermon, “Christus descendit mundum redimere ut liberaret a morte homines,” conatus est non modicum, quantum in se, tam clericos quam laicos de medulla horum verborum interioris intellectus reficere; cum et furfur pro farina, paleam pro grano, absinthium pro vino, auribus audientium plurima proponendo inconvenientia propinasset, et a similaginario camulum pro simila discumbentibus distribuisset.

Sed ne infidelium in sua infidelitate corda persistentium corroboracione, fideliumve in simplicitate manentium, per reiterata a sacrista contra fidem et ad memoriam reducta debilem, quædam, licet plurima omittens, ut in consimilibus fideles in fide reperiantur ferventiores, proponam. The sacrist alludes to the case of William the Bearded, and to the disloyal conduct of the monks of Canterbury in 1205.

^a The tragical story of William the Bearded is told both by Wendover and Paris under the year 1196, but with a difference. To Wendover he is a mischievous demagogue, who stirred up the London populace "against the king's dignity," and after setting fire to Bow Church, in which he had taken refuge, was dragged out of it by archbishop Hubert's orders, and, under circumstances of great, but necessary severity, drawn through the streets at the tails of horses and hanged in chains at Tyburn. To Paris he is a member of a sturdy English family who for generations had let their beards grow "ob indignationem Normanorum;" he was no plotter or traitor, but an upholder of the cause of the heavily taxed poor against the rich citizens, who eluded public burdens; Bow Church was not set on fire by him, but by the armed retainers of the archbishop; and, as he died in the cause of the poor, he may justly be reckoned a martyr.

The sacrist of St. Edmund's, it will be seen, adopts the view of Wendover.

“ alio sine assensu regio tractantes certamen inierunt ;

 ut pro electione nostra idem domui nostræ, nisi citius voluntati regis conformaremur, intra se quilibet fore

The sacrist returns to Bury, and reports the result of his interview with the legate.

In die tertio sequenti redierunt sacrista et Calvus, unus socius ejus, a curia domini legati, deferentes secum breve ejusdem legati domino priori, quod ad eorum petitionem fuerat dictatum. Adjunxit etiam sacrista super [causa] solitarum misericordiarum dominum legatum taliter dispensasse, tanquam ad curiam, scilicet apud Cirencestre, hac specialiter de causa iter suum superius direxisset; videlicet, quod prior sollicitam curam circa validos haberet, ut in Dei servitio fortiores invenirentur, et circa debiles, ut convalescerent, et vires pristinas recuperarent, prout viderit expedire. Dum ne prohibitæ repeterentur comessationes in domo Infirmarii, ad naturam refocillandam convocaret quotiens expediret. Hoc autem præceptum, ex quo præsentem legato notum a conventu fuit in capitulo, fuit observatum usque ad primum Pascha; ab illo vero die, locum tantummodo mutantem solitum in domo Infirmarii, per viij. et decem et duodecim, priore duce, pristinas ita revocabant comessationes, ut cum clerici vel laici in refectorio ad mensam aliquando ob honorem essent convocati, in dedecus et in famæ dispendium vertebatur, cum non ex una parte chori ibidem ad mensas nisi vi. monachi præ vacatione comessationum solitarum jam tunc inceptarum essent relictis, nullo tamen claustrali, præterquam Radulfus de Londonia et Petrus de Len, sacramentum electionis foventes, absque brevi super hoc a domino legato specialiter de voti hujus relaxatione [accepto], ad eas comessationes nolentes accedere.

corripuisset, ait Walterus subsacrista, "Hæc auribus nostris infusa contra dominum regem et sine assensu capituli a nobismetipsis processerunt." Sacrista vero, quia ejus personam specialiter tangebant, ait, "Infructuoso adquievit consilio et fatuo," (subaudi, Electus), "quando, relicto magnatum et regni et sapientum consilio, stultorum quorundam adhærendo, a terra se alienavit Anglicana." Cui Ricardus de Saxham, qui in responsis non tepidus sed festinus probatur, talia festinanter reddidit responsa, "Ex divina constat emanasse providentia, quod inter vos diutinam non fecit moram. Si enim aliquantulum diutius esset moratus, a vobis procul dubio foret oppressus et suffocatus." Quæ cum sic in pleno capitulo sacristæ ejusque complicibus improperasset, et a sacrista præ cordis angustia istud probrosum verbum esset sæpius recitatum, quidam sociorum Ricardi, præcavescentes ne ista processu temporis per legatum, a quo perversorum spes pendebat, eidem possent in malum retorqueri, ita se dixisse supplebant, quod si ille, (subaudi, Electus), diutius inter vos esset moratus, ejus electio quantum ad vos esset jam oppressa et suffocata, licet Ricardus de suffocatione corporis mentionem fecisset. J[ocelinus] elemosinarius, vir duplex animo et varius, subsequutus dixit, "Unum est quod omnibus affirmare cupio, quod neque pro legato neque pro archiepiscopo neque pro papa, eidem H[ugoni] Electo absque assensu regio nunquam in hac domo patebit introitus." Qui saltem dominum papam, utpote qui regibus dominatur et principibus ratione præminentis dignitatis, excepisse debuisset. In die vero Sancti Johannis ante portam Latinam venit W. de Bec, senescallus domini Cant[uariensis] verba ex parte domini sui deferens priori. Sed quando eundem minime reperiit, neque præ arduis domini sui Cant[uariensis] negotiis diutius apud Sanctum Ædmondum potuit morari, fidelibus, scilicet, P[etro] celerario magistroque Nicholao, vices suas super significatis priori ex parte domini Cant[uariensis] fideliter commisit exequendas. Fuit autem hic tenor mandati, licet in vanum: "Mandamus tibi priori, quatinus monachorum tuæ subjectioni subditorum habenas, contra ecclesiasticas libertates repugnantium, compescas; ne, quod absit, si per eos aliquando inter regnum et sacerdotium iterato foret suborta discordia, in te culpa delinquentium tanquam consentientem retorqueatur." Veniens autem P[etrus] celerarius præmisit in pleno capitulo ex parte domini Cant[uariensis] salutationes multiplices et hortationes, ut scilicet in Deum spem plenam habentes sustinerent patienter, et expectarent ejus misericordiam, qui non despicit sperantes in se. Ubi concordia fratrum, ibi caritas; et ubi caritas, ibi Deus; implebit in bonis desiderium nostrum. Ps. 102, 5. Adjungendo, ut si quid alicui, sive regi sive duci, pro negotiis domus esset destinandum, in publico causa prætenderetur primo, et sic demum unam viam consilio proficeretur. Hoc autem dixit, propter quod cantor jam se consilio inveteratæ malitiæ ad curiam ire latenter paraverat, causa acquirendi litteras magnatum ad dominum regem, ne Electus per confirmationem domini papæ in baroniam suam extenderet potestatem; idem rex pro ea appellare festinasset. Hoc quidem consilium processit ab aquilone, a magistro mali, a ministro doli; ab inventore hujus malitiæ, qui successorem, id est, Electum, more hæredis timens, et de infinitis malis veniam promereri desperans, inimicitias multiplicare non distulit et augere iniquitatem. Protestatus est etiam ibidem celerarius, electionem a domino papa jam confirmatam, ut perinde timorem adversariis incuteret. Ad quæ Philippus, hucusque electioni sedens in insidiis, tanquam brucus, tota die volitans per amœna, ad vesperam se in finum demergit, sic ipse, ex quo malitia adversus electionem pululavit, quodammodo volitu palliationis verborum se protegens, in finum nunc plane revelationis conceptæ iniquitatis demersit. Nitebatur enim palam sic contra, quod nondum ejus electio fuit confirmata, nec ulterius potestate alicujus confirmaretur. Sic alii aliis contradicentes, exeunte conventu a capitulo cum Verba mea, magister tamen Nicholaus et Philippus nondum quieverunt, quousque ante sedem prioris in claustro pervenerunt.

Evoluto tempore perventum est ad ante-vigiliam vigiliæ Pentecostes, in qua facta est quæstio in pleno capitulo per J. de Laneh[am] et Ricardum firmarios, consilio pravæ rationis, id est, sacristæ, et perversæ, eo tamen et ejus complicibus ibidem præsentibus, utrum summa quæ a dominis dictis firmariis in augmentum ad cervisiam emendendam et murmur extinguendum de cervisia constituebatur, daretur ulterius, cum et conventus nullos se gaudebat, fructus percepisse, eorumque obedientia exinde onerata, et inutili esset tributo subjugata; adjungentes quod Ricardus de Saxham, tunc subcelerarius, illud augmentum omnino per aliam suscipere recusavit mensuram quam per regiam, cum et una sipha mensuram de Cokef[eld] excederet regia mensura, semperque per eandem antea susciperet. Ad quæ sacrista opposuit se, tanquam ad eum specialiter pertinuisset istam diffinire quæstionem, cum potius odio quam amore caritatis, propter ipsum Ricardum, super celerarii officium loqueretur. Sed cum idem Ricardus diutius improbitatem sacristæ minime sufferret, eoque eum magis clamoroso quo celerarium et magistrum Nicholaum absentes esse videret, his verbis allocutus est sacristam; " Ut quid magis super obedientiam nostram quam " nos super [tuam] loqueris?" Ob quam causam prior clamavit Ricardum, et sine moræ dispendio ab officio subcelerarii absolvit, præcipiens in vi obedientiæ ut redderet claves. At ille vero cum omni celeritate, sine verborum repugnantia aut moræ dispendio, in manus prioris claves tradere festinabat. Celerarius vero domum rediens illo die, finito capitulo, potius in facto gaudere videbatur quam dolere. Cui tamen camerarius, et Rogerus refectorarius, et tertius prior, et H[ugo] de Theford accedentes, rogaverunt ut eum ad pristinam reformaret societatem, quem pro defensione ipsius obedientiæ noverant jam depositum. Quibus responsa, licet tepida, super propositis reddens, respondit se tandem cum priore locuturum, facturumque quicquid cum consilio suo sibi intelligeret cedere ad honorem. Sed cum nec illo die per celerarium, neque in crastino Pentecostes per camerarium et tertium priorem, comitante sibi celerario, Ricardus gratiam prioris inveniret, objurgantes priorem eo quod iram indiscrete et sine aliqua ratione adversus eum conceptam non mitigasset, turbati¹ sunt valde. Quibus prior subnixo sacramento respondit, quod nulla ratione nullave conditione neque modo neque in futuro adquiesceret, ut idem Ricardus ad aliquam promoveretur obedientiam, quousque in Electum oculorum defixisset² intuitus.

ut eorum diutina malitia clarius innotesceret lippis et tonsoribus, dominus H[ugo] Electus eosdem ut illo die secum communicarent invitabat, qui sine omnium exceptione aut ratione præostensa, tanquam uniformiter in eadem malitia instructi, secum comedere vel communicare refutaverunt. Acceptoque prior mandato trium executorum absentavit se in crastino a capitulo, transmisitque suppriori litteras illas ut præsentem capitulo perlegeret. Quibus perlectis, erigens se magister Nicholaus, prætenditque eidem suppriori ex parte delegatorum transcriptum tenoris mandati domini papæ, in quo¹ etiam diem eorum adventus conventui præfixerunt. Factumque est hoc die octavarum Sanctæ Trinitatis.

Die quidem Mercurij proxima subsequenti, accedentes ad capitulum Sancti Ædmundi H. abbas de Wardon et R[icardus] prior de Dunestap[le] et R[icardus] decanus Salesber[ia] causa executionis, ad instantiam totius capituli in primis dederunt sententiam excommunicationis, accensis candelis, cum monachis ejusdem capituli, in omnes illos qui ab illo die in antea pacem Dei et ecclesiæ istius malitiose perturbarent vel impedirent, præcipue quantum ad electionem H[ugonis] confirmandam vel infirmandam, vel qui contra conscientiam suam scripto vel dicto falsa allegando, vel falsam narrationem facti proponendo, vel verum celando cum super hoc essent interrogati, vel quodcumque impedimentum impetrando, quo minus vel tardius mandatum domini papæ eisdem tribus commissum executioni mandetur, quicquam malitiose fuerint machinati.

The delegates arrive at Bury, and open the commission.

Post hoc autem præceperunt omnes, tam clericos quam laicos, et viros religiosos qui de gremio ipsius capituli non essent, amoveri. rogatis, cum subticuisset sacrista dare responsa, verumque confiteri cum super hoc esset interrogatus, ait decanus Salesberi, “Frater, qui erroneam habet conscientiam in sententiam jam incidit latam, sicut qui falsa pro veris proponit;” non enim aliter eum denunciavit in excommunicationem incidisse. Itaque illo die in causa nichil amplius profecti sunt.

Next day a letter from the pope to the delegates is read, empowering them to inquire into and correct any bad customs that might have found their way into St. Edmund's monastery.

In crastino quidem prætendit magister Nicholaus alias litteras eisdem iudicibus ex parte domini papæ super correctione pravæ consuetudinum domus, sub hoc tenore:—“Innocentius episcopus etc. dilectis filiis etc. Ex parte celerarii et provisorum monasterii Sancti Ædmundi fuit propositum coram nobis quod in eodem monasterio quædam pravæ consuetudines, immo potius corruptelæ, contra monasticæ religionis observantiam obrep[s]erunt, quæ nisi citius evellantur, tanquam robur auctoritatis et quasi privilegium delinquendi a transgressoribus assumuntur. Progress of the inquiry.

His itaque perlectis, præceperunt iudices ut conventus a capitulo egrederetur, et unusquisque post alium in suo ordine rediret, super interrogatis eisdem responsurus. Facta est illo die ista examinatio a singulis singillatim, præstito tamen sacramento quod nullus odio vel amore falsa diceret vel vera celaret, cum ab eisdem super veritate esset requisitus. Sic super hoc continuatis duabus diebus, perventum est ad diem tertium. In quo cum nichil novum super objectis et responsis sine omni deliberatione vellent constituere, renovaverunt sententiam præscriptam, adjungentes ut si quid aliquis infra diem acquireret vel adquisitis uteretur, quo minus vel tardius etc., ut supra. Post hoc admonuerunt universos ad pacis compositionem, in qua cum tunc proficere non possent, dederunt diem partibus, scilicet diem Veneris proximam post festum Sancti Barnabæ apostoli, ad tractandum iterum de pace. Coram quibus sacrista ita respondit, quod salva conscientia et salvo canone¹ in quantum posset ad pacem niteretur, licet eam semper magis studeret perturbare, quam ad mentis tranquillitatem reformare. Cumque prior de Dunestap[le] omnes sibi circumsedentes videret præ falso Latino in publico prolato sacristam deridere, ita supplevit pro sacrista, "salva conscientia et salvo jure." Datus est itaque dies ille ad pacis reformationem. In qua si non possent proficere de consensu partium, statuerunt eisdem diem peremptorium, scilicet vigiliam apostolorum Petri et Pauli apud Liuton, H[ugoni] scilicet Electo et sex electoribus ejus, et omnibus illis qui se duxerint opponendos electioni præfati H[ugonis], ut comparerent coram eisdem die et loco, per se vel sufficientes responsales monachos, mandatum domini papæ alias eis editum audituri, et juri parituri. Statuerunt etiam illo die ut de communi partibus provideretur in sumptibus sufficientibus ad totam causam illam, et si qua dilatoria exceptio deberet opponi, omnes illo die proponerentur.

In crastino quidem, antequam a loco recederent judices, venit Johannes de Pakeham nuntius sacristæ a domino legato Angliæ, deferens secum litteras domini Wyntoniensis justitiarum domini regis, Phillipi de Brunham et Johanni de Cornherde custodibus abbatæ, in hæc verba:—"Mandamus vobis quatinus sine dilatione capiatis in manum domini regis abbatiam de Sancto Ædmondo, cum baronia ad eam pertinente, Verumtamen quoniam difficillimum erat tot monachos tam longe proficisci, ideo ibidem in crastino coram eisdem pars Electi tres procuratores constituit pro tota parte sua, salvo sibi beneficio, ut si opus esset ex aliis testes producere possent, ita siquidem,¹ quod si omnes tres interesse non possent, duo vel unus ex illis ad idem plene sufficeret. Respondit quod dictum juramentum simile est juramento calumpniæ, quod non debet præstari nisi post litem contestatam, et hoc, si præstari debet et potest, præstari ab actore universitatis; altera vero parte, scilicet Electi, contrarium asserente, ejus definitionem quæstionis usque ad diem partibus datam duxerunt differendam.

Cui objectioni magister Nicholas ita respondit, quod non erat necesse, eo quod generale mandatum regis ad eos sicut et ad alios pervenerat, formaque litterarum in medio perlecta est, et de plano dixit regium assensum requisitum fuisse, sed post transmissionem litterarum suarum. Tunc cantor prorupit in verba, dicens quod antequam litteræ regis pervenissent ad capitulum, destinatus est ipse et magister Thomas de Walsingh[am] cum eo ad regem, ut assensum ejus requirerent.

The Elect states in chapter that the judges and many great lords wish him to go to the king.

In crastino vero Inventionis Sancti Stephani martyris, facta mentione in capitulo per dominum H[ugonem] Electum super itinere magistro Nicholao a iudicibus commisso, præsentiibus priore et sacrista, adjecit quod dominus Wyntoniensis, pariterque iudices et magnates cum universo clero apud Sanctum Albanum existentes, in hoc omnes adquieverunt, ut ipse, sicut dictum est, iter istud subiret. Unde vestrum est, scilicet fratrum suorum, consulere utrum expediat necne. Cujus consilio utpote sano cum universi fideles adquiescerent, postulavit humiliter ut sibi magistroque Nicholao in expensis fieret exhibitio, sicut paulo ante prior et conventus per literas delegatorum susceperant in mandatum. Ad quæ sacrista his verbis allocutus est, dicens, “ Quoniam expensis infructuosis

Sed antequam dominus prior cum ordinandis ibi venisset, dominus Elyensis litteras supradictas ex parte memoratorum susceperat inspiciendas. Quibus diligenter inspectis, dominoque priore et sacrista cum magistro Thoma cum aliis ordinandis, jam ad eum accedentibus, nullo modo nullave ratione animum ejusdem ad gratiam ordinum prosequendam poterant inclinare, donec prior cautionem præstitisset ibi sufficientem, quod super appellatione litterarum supradictarum nullus de cætero quæstionem ei neque verbum moveret. Sive potest dici Adam a dando aliena; dedit enim quod non habuit; osculum quidem prætendens pacem dissimulavit exterius, dum dolum et dolorem in corde machinaretur interius. Dec. 20.

Igitur illis domum reversis, et jam priori partique veritatis quæ sibi in peregrinatione sua fuerant dicta et responsa patefactis, gavisus sunt universi, tamen diversis de causis. Gavisus enim sunt fideles tanti viri constantia, qui regiam (subaudi) iram temporalem pro tuendis libertatibus ecclesiasticis malebat incurrere, quam eas subdole consulendo fallere. Gaudebant et alii, quia prior¹ et sacrista, audito domini Elyensis mandato, concipiebant se posse promovere quos vellent, et quos nollent pro voluntate repellere. Igitur prior et sacrista, habito super his consilio, quemdam habuerunt monachum promovendum, nomine Philippum, quem speciali dilectione amplectebantur præ aliis; et nitentes eum promovere, aliquosque qui cum electione steterant repellere, solum conventui ordinandum in capitulo præsentaverunt. Quorum intentionem intuentes fideles, id est, pars sacramentum electionis foventes, contristati sunt et conturbati; super quo etiam, finito capitulo, inierunt consilium. In hoc tandem adquiescebant, ut contra Philippi promotionem præcipue, perturbatoris pacis nostræ et ecclesiæ, per magistrum Nicholaum, Ricardum de Saxham, et Symonem de Walsingh[am] coram priore fieret appellatio, ne illum quem de perjurio parati fuerunt convincere ad sacros ordines promoveret; quod ita factum est, præsentate etiam Electo. Sed quia prior et sacrista tunc temporis omnia sibi credebant inclinare, appellationem supradictorum et repugnantiam, utpote claustralium, pro minimo reportabant, neque eorum appellationem ad-

Sed antequam prior cum dictis sociis ibidem pervenisset, litteræ dictorum claustralium Philippo [contra] dicentium, attestantes appellationem factam contra Philippi promotionem ob causam superius dictam, et illam per litteras dictas renovantes, coram domino Eliense fuerant recitatæ. Subsecuto quidem priore ad dictum P[hilippum] præsentandum, præterdit ei dominus Eliensis litteras præmemoratas; atque super hoc habito cum viris peritis consilio, utrum videlicet appellationi esset deferendum, an prioris præsentationi condescendendum, responsum est ab illis non posse dictum præsentatum ad quosvis ordines promovere, nisi appellatione præmissa prius renuntiata. Igitur dato priori hujusmodi post episcopum responso, non sine magna confusione infecto negotio domum cum sociis suis rediit, die sancti Thomæ apostoli, quo supra memorati regis nuntii diem deliberationis repentibus pecuniam a domo sua tempore interdicti extorsam præfixerant.¹

 “ in hac causa commissa, per sententiam diffinitivam
 “ confirmavimus, contradictoribus silentium perpetuum “ imponentes. Huic autem diffinitioni nostræ, cum “ eam in capitulo recitarem, tam sacrista quam pre“ centor et cæteri contradictores Electi adquiescentes
 “ in ejus amplexus irruerunt, et eum ut canonice

 “ Valeat universitas vestra in Domino.”

Igitur, licet in hac sententia contineatur quod, facta hujus recitatione a iudicibus in capitulo, sacrista et alii in amplexus Electi irruerunt, in sequentibus tamen evidentius habetur qualiter et quando, et sub qua restrictione, tanquam inviti et quodammodo coacti id fecerunt. Nam, sicut habetur superius, postquam sacrista pro certo didicisset sententiam contra eundem fore denunciandam, recessit inde appellando; atque non eo minus, prolata postmodum sententia, iudices duxerunt Electum in capitulum ut coram conventu rei diffinitionem recitarent. Ad illam itaque recitationem audiendam absentaverunt se tam sacrista quam precentor, et Adam infirmarius, et alii partis eorum. Quo tamen ita facto, iudices duxerunt inde Electum ad magnum altare, cum ymno sollempniter a monachis et clero decantato; atque subsecuta ibidem a priore de Donestap[le] oratione reduxerunt eum in chorum et collocaverunt in sedem abbatis; ubi sui et quidam, licet pauci, de parte adversa in ejus oscula irruerunt, non tamen sacrista, neque precentor, neque Henricus Ruffus, neque Walterus, neque Johannes de Disce, neque Adam infirmarius, neque Gregorius, neque W. pitantiarius cum aliis pluribus, se subtrahentes. Quod cum iudices vidissent, iterato cum Electo intrantes capitulum, adunaverunt conventum, sequente populo non modico. Mox autem illis coadunatis, iudices mandaverunt sacristam et precentorem et Adam infirmarium atque alios absentes, per priorem scilicet et duos alios monachos, quatinus auctoritate sibi indulta apparuissent ibidem coram eis mandatum apostolicum audire. Quibus, licet invite, tunc primo apparentibus, recapitulavit prior de Donestap[le] processum facti secundum apostolicum mandatum sibi et sociis supe-

The manner of the sacrist's submission. He was not present at the reading of the judgment, nor when the delegates brought the elect as abbot into the chapter house; nor, when he was installed in the abbot's chair, did he come for the kiss of peace. Many others follow his example.

The delegates return to the chapter house and; summon the sacrist and other absentees before them.

A.D. 1215. rius directum, non prætermittendo quod in fine illius continetur mandati, videlicet, quod cognita veritate electionis et confirmata, compescerent ecclesiastica censura contradictores auctoritate prædicta. "Igitur hoc ordine secundum mandatum nobis injunctum processi, volumus scire a te, sacrista, et ab aliis alias electioni contradicentibus, utrum sententiæ nostræ diffinitivæ, et domino H[ugoni] Electo per eandem a nobis confirmato, adquiescere vultis aut contradicere?" Sacrista quidem super hac responsione in arto jam positus, et præcavens tamen ne contradicendo sententiæ diffinitivæ aut electioni incurreret sententiam quam iudices erant parati contradictoribus inferre, ait illis: "Si vos, quos nulla veritatis latet circumstantia, protestaveritis in periculo animæ vestræ hic coram nobis, electionem sine fraude secundum Deum processam, fateor me plane sententiæ vestræ et electioni de cætero assentire." Moxque omnes ejusdem partis idem promiserunt. Quibus abbas de Wardon, coram multitudine tam laicorum quam clericorum, taliter satisfecit: "Confiteor coram Deo et sanctis ejus et vobis, atque in periculo animæ meæ pro me et sociis meis protestor, quod electio facta de H[ugone] de Norwolde, secundum quod intelligimus et examinatione diligenti perscrutati sumus, et veraciter scimus, a Deo est, et vera canonica." Quibus auditis sacrista atque alii singuli, tunc demum in ejus amplexus irruentes, promiserunt ei canonicam obedientiam.

Finally the opposers submit, and exchange with the new abbot the kiss of peace.

Mar. 12.

Sopita itaque hoc ordine quoad iudicium populi et suffocata omni malitia contra Electum superius proposita, statim subsecutus est dominus abbas suum officium. Nam in secunda die sequenti, quod est sancti Gregorii, post ejus confirmationem, eo capitulum tenente, atque in omnibus quoad spiritualia vices abbatis gerente, constituit Ricardum de Stertesforde custodem criptarum, atque postmodum die sequenti commisit eidem Ricardo, pariterque magistro Alano, curam super confessionibus privatis excercendam. Quo facto, prior atque supprior et seniores in ordine tulerunt indigne, eo quod duos novicios pares illis fecerat, qui diu ante eos pondus diei sustinuerant et æstus; et illis ita murmurantibus perventum est hoc ad aures Electi per illum qui hæc viderat et audiverat. Dominus autem Electus, cupiens per omnia priori tunc et senioribus placere, absolvit dictos a confessione superius injuncta, verum etiam cum unus ex illis, magister scilicet Alanus, sæpius in capitulo coram Electo prostratus, absolutionem super injuncto petivisset officio.

In hac igitur parte domino H[ugone] Electo per dies aliquot post confirmationem ejus commorante, de assensu conventus et domini Cantuariensis archiepiscopi, curiam adiit, comitantibus secum priore, celerario, precentore, Adam infirmario, Ricardo de Hengham, magistro Nicholao, ad supplicandum videlicet domino regi ex parte conventus, ut dictum H[ugonem] ab eis canonicè electum et jam confirmatum in ejus gratiam susciperet et amorem. Qui cum venissent extra Nottingham, videlicet in Schyrewode,^a dominumque regem a longe venientem intuiti essent, descenderunt ab equis suis, ut scilicet pedibus regi occurrendo ipsius gratiam perinde facilius adquirerent; et eo cominus accedente corruerunt ante eum, genibus flexis, regiam benivolentiam flagitando et gratiam. Eapropter, humilitate tali coram eo præostensa, miro modo placatus est rex; atque non permittens¹ Electum humo diutius jacentem, erexit eum, et sic demum in his verbis ora resolvit: "Benevenias, domine Electe, salvo jure regni mei"; et pergentes pariter longo tempore secretius adinvicem loquebantur, nullo mediante alio. Cumque dominus Electus illo die super negotio a domino rege

Quo facto, habito cum suis consilio, misit dominum Ricardum de Saxham apud Londoniam, ut mediante consilio barones sane perquireret, utrum domini regis gratiam, totiens et totiens rescriptam, rebus se habentibus ut tunc, expediret efflagitare. Cui quidem dominus Cantuariensis omnesque magnates in hoc concurrerunt, ut domini sui regis gratiam non solum bis vel ter, sed [usque] quo eam obtinuisset, efflagitaret incessanter. Quo audito Ricardus profectus est ad regem apud Stanes, ubi etiam invenit comitem Warenniæ, et comitem de Pembrce, et Robertum de Burgate. Cunque causam sui adventus in conspectu domini regis ex parte domini abbatis et conventus humiliter perfudisset, respondit rex blando vultu et benigno, "Frater, "revertere quam citius ad domum, Electoque vestro "ex parte mea injungas, ut ad me sine omni dilatione venire festinet. Idem etiam, in litteris suis per eundem Ricardum domino abbati destinatis, licet in eisdem non nominasset, abbatem significavit.

Quod cum dominus abbas cognovisset, postposito omni negotio terreno, iter arripuit in crastino versus dominum regem post ejusdem mandati susceptionem,

Hugo at once sets out for the court, and finds the

^a According to Wendover (vol. ii. p. 114, Rolls edition), the surprise of London by the barons took place on Sunday, May 24th. Coggeshall dates it a week earlier, on May 17. This seems to be the right date, for in a letter among the the patronage of which (Tanner's Notitia) had been granted by king John to Eustace, bishop of Ely, and his successors in 1215. Robert seems to have remained at Thorney twenty-one years, dying in 1237 (Dugdale's Monasticon, III.).

^a The MS. of the poem here printed appears to be unique; a communication from M. Deprez of the Bibliothèque Nationale informs me that no copy of it exists at Paris. The Cottonian text is contained in a small volume about eight inches by six, double-columned, in a hand of the thirteenth century. It is clearly and finely written, with ornamental initial letters in red and blue. Of Denis Piramus as a writer some account has been given in the Introduction. The date of composition of the present poem may be set down approximately at about 1240.

^a Cil ki Partonope trova. The author of the article on Denis Piramus in vol. xix. of the Histoire Littéraire de la France, following M. Francisque Michel, was of opinion that by these words Denis pointed to himself as the author of the romance of Partonope. But no such view suggested itself to the Abbé de la Rue (Essai sur les Bardes, iii. 101), nor was it accepted by Sir T. D. Hardy (Descr. Catal. No. 1107; Rolls series). Mr. H. L. D. Ward also, in the course of his remarks on this MS. in his valuable work on the Romance MSS. in the British Museum, seems indisposed to close with the theory that Denis meant to speak of himself and the author of Partonope as one and the same person. Indeed, if the passage be read carefully, it suggests an opposite conclusion. The author of Partonope and Marie de France, says Denis, indulge in much wild fiction and yet are eagerly read. I am going to tell you the true story of Edmund (69-78); being true, it is more edifying than the fables which please you so much, and you ought therefore to accept my verses as willingly as those of Marie or the author of Partonope.

^a Up to this point, Denis has been following Geoffrey of Monmouth ; now he turns, apparently, to an English version (infra, l. 3266) of the narrative of Gaufridus de Fontibus on the Infancy and Youth of St. Edmund. This narrative he continues to paraphrase to about l. 2000. Authentic history knows nothing of an Offa, king of East Anglia, reigning before St. Edmund. The name was perhaps suggested to the writer of the legend by that of the original Offa " the first recorded king of the " East Angles " (Freeman's Norman Conquest, i. 25), founder of the dynasty of the Offingas or Uffingas.

 Le poeple en est en grant errur,
 En grant crieme, en grant turment,
 E doutent que foreyne gent
 Viengent sur els, si les asaile,
 Si envers els prenent bataile,
 Sanz cheveteyn e sanz segnur,
 Ki les maynting en estur.

Kant il nunt ki les mayntinge,
 1620 Si crement ke les mesavienge.

Cunseil unt demande e quis
De tuz les sages del pais.

¶ A Caistre^a funt lur assemble,
Ke dunc ert de grant renomee.
Tuz les plus sages del regnee,
E li evesque e li abe,
Li sage cunte, e li barun,
Furent a cele electiun.

A great meeting of worthies is held at Caistor.

1630 Entrels cunseil unt demande,
De ki rey ferunt del regnee.

Li seneschal lieve en estant,
Ki mult sages ert e valiant;
Ki a la mort fu Offe le rey,
E ki Edmund amena od sey.
Segnurs, fet il, ore escutez;
Ke mestier de conseil en avez,
A rey eslire e segnour,

The seneschal addresses them,

1640 Ki le pais quart a honour,
E al poeple seit acceptable,
E sage duitre e covenable
A cheisun ne reisun ne vey,
Ke meis puissez estre sanz rey.
E kant rey vus estuet aver,
Errer vus estuet par saver,
De tel eslire, de tel choysir,
Ki en pes vus puse maintenir,
E dreit e justice garder,
E la tere en pes gouverner.

¶ Mult vus fu li reys Offe amys,
1650 E vus ama tant cum fu vifs.
Sage rey fut e bon justiser,
E seintement murust ultre mer.
Jeo fu of li quant il morust;

^a The Caistor near Yarmouth is probably meant. In Gaufridus (ante, vol. i, p. 101) the place where the East Anglians met to elect their king is not named. The church of Caistor is dedicated in honour of St. Edmund.

- Mult mi peisa ke morir dust.
 Devant ceo ke la morte li prist,
 Par fey e par serement me mist,
 E mey e tute sa autre gent
 Mist par fey e par serement,
 Ke quant nus retournerum,
 1660 Par Sessoyne nus realisum,
 Ou li reys e nus sujournames,
 Kant a Jerusalem alames,
 Od le rey son cosin germeyn,
 Qui tute Sessoyne a suz sa mayn ;
 E ke nus menisum defrunt
 Le fiz le rey, lenfant Edmund,
 Quen Est-Angle en feisum rey ;
 Ceo nus fist il plever par fey.
 Offe seisi le damisel
 1670 En cest realme par son anel,
 Dunt il fu fet rey e sacre,
 Kant il fu premier corune,
 E nus, segnurs, par la venymes ;
 Tant parlames e tant feismes,
 Ke kant nus de iluc alames,
 En ceste tere lenfant menames.
 Pur quey le vus celerum ?
 A grant peyne conquis le avum,
 Kant le rei Offe ad le regnee
 1680 A Edmund son cosin devise,
 Par nus qui le fiz en plevimes,
 E le serement en fesimes.
 Ki dirra le dreit e le veir,
 Bien il deit estre e rei e heir.
 E pur ceo e pur autre rien,
 Dunt jeo vus mustreray tres bien
 Le devez choisir e eslire,
 Kil seit de vus e rei e sire.

 Que a la porte ad un messenger,
 E si voldreit a vus parler.
 2240 Li reis respont, Lessel entrer.
 Li messenger est venu avant,
 Oyant seint Edmund maintenant,
 E oyant trestute sa gent ;
 Dist son message hardiement.
 ¶ Reis, fet il, entendez a mey,
 E tuz cels autre que ci vey ;
 Yngar, que mult fet a duter,
 En tut le siecle, en tere en mer,
 Ki unkes jour vencu ne fu,
 2250 Ne james ne serra vencu ;
 Ki est nostre lige sire,
 Finablement vus mande a dire,
 Que vers cest pais ad conquis
 Plusurs teres, plusurs pais,
 Dunt tut li poeple est enclin
 A son comandement enfin.
 Ore est en cest regne arive,
 Quil mult par ad desire,
 Od grant estoire, od grant navie
 2260 Aver en volt la segnurie,
 E en cest pais volt ester

^a The executioner, according to Geoffrey Gaimar (Lestorie des Engles, 2922), was named Coran Colbe. Denis confined himself to Abbo, and either was unacquainted with, or rejected, the additional information which Geoffrey had gathered from East Anglian and Danish tradition. Thus we hear nothing about the battle near Thetford (Gaimar, 2876, Sax. Chron. a. 870), nor of the words of double meaning by which Edmund, for a time, concealed his identity from his captors (Gaimar, 2888).

^a This seems to mean that the relics lay in the wooden church at Beodricsworth for 110 years, till they were translated into the basilica consecrated in 1032 (Annales

S. Edmundi, supra, p. 3). It follows that they were translated from Hoxne to Beodricsworth in 922 (vol. i., Introd. xxi, xxvii).

^a Denis has translated the Life of St. Edmund "from the English and from the Latin." The sources which he has hitherto used, so far as now known to us, are represented by the Life of the Infancy by Gaufridus (vol. i., p. 93), and Abbo's Passio. Both these sources are in Latin. It seems therefore that there must have been an English Life of the Infancy lying before him, which is not now extant. This English Life may perhaps be indicated by some one among the titles of works on the Edmundian story not now existing, which are written on the margins of Bod. 240 (vol. i., Intr., lxvi); e.g. "the book of Bliburgh," or "alia Legenda," or "Nicholaus de Warengford," or "H. Norwi-censis."

Hermannus,
§ 3.

^a Instead of continuing to follow Herman, who, after introducing Sweyn, immediately connects him with St. Edmund and the faithful Egelwin, Denis seems to have resolved to give an independent account of Sweyn's raids upon England; though no doubt he would have, with Herman, Florence, and Malmesbury, made the conclusion of them consist in the judgment on the tyrant, executed by St. Edmund himself. But the MS. breaks off imperfect, just after the mention of the treason of the four northern earls (p. 250).

^a Tiefert. Thetford.

^b The Saxon Chronicles and Florence have many notices of Ulfketel, earl or ealdorman of East Anglia. He was a benefactor to St. Edmund's monastery (Cod. Dipl., No. 1349), which perhaps explains the highly laudatory mention of him here.

^a As Denis confounds the battle fought at Ringmere in 1010, between Ulfketel and Thorkill, with that between Ulfketel and Sweyn in 1004, it seems reasonable to infer that the whole of the preceding details of the supposed victory are imaginary. The battle at Ringmere was not a victory for the English, but a defeat. It is mentioned by Snorro (Lappenberg, ii., 215), but ascribed to a wrong year. Ringmere (Lapp., loc. cit.) is supposed to be identical with Rushmere Heath near Ipswich.

^a Crisme. Does this refer to the story told by Malmesbury (Gesta Regum, 185, Rolls ed.), of the sullyng of the font at Ethelred's baptism ?

^b A Leofwine, the king's high reeve, was killed in battle in 1001 ; after him, there was no distinguished person of the name before the Leofwin, one of earl Godwin's sons.

^c No Ælfwin is recorded as having held any high post at this time.

^d Markiers. The names of Sigferth and Morcar are evidently taken from the great thanes of the Five Burghs so named, murdered by Edric in 1015.

^a The circumstance that in this account of the election of abbot Simon no mention is made of any application from the convent to the king for leave to elect or for his confirmation of their choice, must probably be regarded as evidence of the weakness and unpopularity of Henry III. Under John, as we have seen (Elect. Hugonis, passim), the monks tried to adopt an independent course, but had reason to regret their boldness. At the election of abbot Thomas, forty years later, the consent of Edward I. to the choice of the convent was scrupulously and respectfully requested (infra, p. 307).

Et quamvis deceptis et non decipientibus jura subveniant, in omnibus tamen exauditi pro suæ religionis reverentia in tantum Romani pontificis animum contra monachos instigabant, ut papa, invective rescribens monachis, eos filios inobediendiæ immo hereticos et apostatas denominaret; insuper, inopportune insistentibus fratribus, scribens domino Cantuariensi et decano Lyncolniensi, quatinus, non obstante aliquo privilegio seu appellationis remedio, dictos fratres in corporalem possessionem alterius areæ infra burgum Sancti Edmundi, in parte occidentali eis ad inhabitandum concessæ, auctoritate apostolica introducerent. Cumque præfati executores, videlicet Cantuariensis per commissarium, thesaurarium scilicet Herefordensem, decanus personaliter, ad exequendum mandatum sibi injunctum ad Sanctum Edmundum accessissent, et ingressi capitulum blandis suasionibus monachos ad suscipiendum fratres frustra conarentur;¹ [ac] deinde in parochiali ecclesia beatæ Mariæ sedentes, pro tribunali comparentibus in judicio partibus, post longas altercationes, auditis hinc inde propositis, in favorem fratrum negotium maturantes, prædictam aream adierunt festinanter. After the death of Alexander IV. the monks lay their case before his successor, Urban IV., fol. 30.

Et quia præscriptione longi temporis eliditur actio illius qui deses est in petendo jus suum; lex enim persequitur desides; odiosi namque sunt desides et sui juris contemptores, qui perpetua taciturnitate actiones suas exstingui patiuntur; ideoque, defuncto Alexandro papa,^a qui fratrum extiterat currus et auriga, et substituto felicis recordationis papa Urbano iiiij^{to}, diriguntur ex parte monachorum celeres nuntii ad curiam, qui domino apostolico derogationem privilegiis monasterii beati Edmundi illatam, prætextu supradictæ literæ a prædecessore suo fratribus Minoribus concessæ, et alia dampna et gravamina seriatim exposuerunt. Quibus auditis, protestatus est dominus papa, etsi non habeat imperium per imparem,^b non decere tamen illam divinissimam sedem decreta et sancita suorum prædecessorum absque ardua et rationabili causa et de fratrum consensu in irritum revocare. Et quia apostolicæ sedi astruxit fore contraria, per operis effectum judicavit non agenda. Nam præfatis nuntiis exactissime ad pedes suæ sanctitatis negotium prosequentibus, factum sui antecessoris revocavit de plano, mandans in virtute obedientiæ provinciali et aliis fratribus Minoribus in Anglia commorantibus, quatinus non obstante aliqua impetratione a prædecessore suo contra privilegia monachorum Sancti Edmundi martiris optenta, a loco quem tam illicite occupaverant dirutis ædificiis omnibus incunctanter recederent.

^a Alexander IV. died June 12, 1261, and Urban IV. was elected three months later (Milman's Latin Christianity, vol. vi.).

^b per imparem. The meaning seems to be, "although the power which he held was plenary, and

"equal to that of any of his predecessors;" i.e., though he might have reversed at once what had been done at Bury in favour of the friars, yet, &c. Battely omits the passage.

Fratres autem, mandato apostolico humiliter obtemperantes et a præsumptione sua resipiscentes, directis vice suæ universitatis ad capitulum monachorum ob pacis reformationem quibusdam discretis fratribus, in præsentia domini abbatis et totius conventus, prænominato loco et omni jure suo totaliter renunciaverunt. Et condonatis in spiritu Christi hinc inde offensis, in osculo pacis a monachis admissi, refusionem sumptuum et expensarum una cum dampnis et interesse pietatis intuitu remitti, orationumque suffragiis imprecati sunt compensari. Sed mira Dei dispensatione actum est, ut quemadmodum in vigilia translationis beati martiris præfati loci adepti sunt ingressum, ita in vigilia passionis ejusdem penitus eundem abdicarunt. Et veluti in die translationis tripudiabant de optento, sic in die passionis ejusdem, fundo cum ædificiis relicto, ordinataque processione, omnes pariter egressi ad basilicam sancti regis venerunt, palam in conspectu cleri et populi protestantes se memoratum locum injuste et contra libertatem et privilegia monachorum quotannis inhabitasse, et itidem se ad illum, vel ad alium quatuor limitibus comprehensum nolle redire imperpetuum. Et licet fratrum instantiæ veluti bonæ fidei possessores pro sua republica resultarent monachi, tamen vulgaribus susurriis, uti Judæi recusantes, quo, uti Samaritanis, detestatione fratrum viciniæ extiterunt pernotabiles; ^a unde ut liquido omnibus claresceret, non religionis execratio, sed justitiæ evictio fomitem contentionis ministrasse, dicti abbas et conventus ex dono gratuito locum ad inhabitandum in possessione monasterii extra septa suæ jurisdictionis memoratis fratribus favorabiliter concesserunt. 25th April 1258, and that they abandoned their premises there after a stay of five years six months and twenty-four days, i.e., on the 19th November 1263. Matthew Paris also (vol. v, p. 688, Rolls ed.) dates the intrusion in 1258.

Et ego, Henricus Petri de Ayssele, dictus Fikeys, clericus Norwicensis dioceseos, puplicus apostolica auctoritate notarius, suprascriptos processus executorum prædictorum et subexecutorum deputatorum ab eis, ac literas eorundem michi pro exemplando accopiando et transcribendo commissas et assignatas, quas patentes, autenticas, et sigillatas inveni, propria mea manu transcripsi exemplavi et fideliter accopiavi. Et quia post ascultationem et examinationem fidelem hinc inde factam transumptum meum cum originalibus processibus et literis in omnibus concordare reperi, ideo me in testem fidelis accopiationis factæ subscripsi, et ejus evidens testimonium signum meum apposui consuetum. Nec objiciantur instrumento interlineatura rasuræ et suppleturæ superius positæ, videlicet interlineatura apposita inter xiiij^{am} et xiiij^{am} lineam descensive in illis verbis “a sede apostolica”; nec etiam rasura in xxvj^{ta} linea descensive in illo vocabulo “Fordham.” Sicut nec obstat suppletura in xxxvj^{ta} linea, descensive in fine lineæ in illis videlicet vocabulis “Id. Octobris.” Nam propria manu correxi interlineavi rasi et supplevi. Ego Henricus notorius suprascriptus de cæteris rasuris interlineaturis correctionibus et suppletionibus non est jure,¹ quia non sunt in locis suspectis et ideo eas approbo ego notarius antedictus.

Nota sacristas istius domus cum gestis eorum.^a

Temporibus domini Baldewini abbatis, primo Thurstanus, postea Tolinus, sacristæ fungebantur officio. Hi duo temporibus prædicti abbatis, ecclesia lignea et veteri complanata, ecclesiæ nostræ fundamenta jecerunt, parietes erexerunt, presbiterium ad plenum consummaverunt, et beati martyris translationem procuraverunt. Feretrum etiam beati martyris, et Sanctorum Botulphi et Jurmini, laminis argenteis exsculperunt.

Underabbot Baldwin (1065-1097), Thurstan and Tolinus.

Hos secutus est, tempore domini Roberti abbatis, in eodem officio vir staturæ fere giganteæ, Godefridus nomine, magnus corpore sed major animo. Hic refectorium, capitulum, domum infirmorum, et abbatis aulam¹ consummavit ad plenum. Iste etiam magnam campanam non levi pretio comparavit.

Godfrey under abbot Robert (1102-1107).

2. Subsecuti sunt eum viri totius prudentiæ Radulphus et Herveus sacristæ temporibus domini Anselmi abbatis. Qui murorum ambitum circa atrium ecclesiæ fecerunt, ecclesiæ beatæ Mariæ, cum turri sua, Cloacarium, et deintus cimbala bene sonantia, et turrim Sancti Jacobi. Valvas etiam duplices in fronte ecclesiæ, insculptas digitis magistri Hugonis, qui, cum Quia libere tenentes de honore Sancti Eadmundi ad Hervei comparationem in murorum edificatione quasi rivuli fuerunt, ille fons fuit. Redditus quos ex antiquo jure sacrista habet in villa Sancti Eadmundi Herveus comparavit, et terram Thomæ Noel de Hanstede. Iste Herveus, frater Taleboti prioris, omnes expensas invenit fratri suo priori in scribenda magna bibliotheca, et manu magistri Hugonis incomparabiliter fecit depingi. Qui cum non inveniret in partibus nostris pelles vitulinas sibi accommodas, in Scotiæ partibus parchamena comparavit. Pitancias etiam quas habemus annuas, in anniversariis eorum^a ipse instituit, et pretio dato redditus comparavit.

Helyas, sacrist under abbot Ording

3. Secutus est eum Helyas sacrista, nepos Ordingi abbatis, natus apud Hilderele, cognomento Widewel. Iste Helyas, conflagratis omnibus officinis domus Sancti Eadmundi, abbatis aulam, refectorium, dormitorium, et domum infirmorum vetustam, et capitulum reformavit ad plenum. Et omnes alias officinas in curia inchoavit ille, et primum manum apposuit, quod successores sui feliciter consummaverunt. Tabulam¹ etiam argenteam,¹ pretii c. marcarum, ante magnum altare fabrefieri fecit, et festum reliquiare instituit. Erogationem ante factam diebus festivis per manum sacristæ ipse constituit. Crucem in choro et Mariam et Johannem per manus magistri Hugonis incomparabiliter fecit insculpi. Idem etiam Helyas avunculum suum, cum ei sua non sufficerent tempore turbatæ pacis,^b de bonis sacristiæ assensu conventus devote et pie adjuvit.

Huic successit Willelmus cognomento Wiardel; qui non sine causa a domino Sampson abbate amotus fuit ab administratione. Huic aliquando ministravit dominus

Quo in brevi mortuo, ministravit etiam eidem in eodem officio magister Sampson, postea abbas. Qui tempore officii sui pro majori parte chorum consummavit, et unam istoriam in majori turre ad ostium occidentale.

Joc. Chron., § 9.

5. Domino W. Wiardel successit^a dominus Hugo sacrista, qui turrim magnam versus occidentem tecto apposito et plumbato consummavit, domino abbate Sampson laquearia et tigna, et quicquid ibidem ligneum est, devotius impendente. Turrim etiam juxta capellam Sanctæ Fidis plene, quoad opus lapideum, consummavit; in alia turri juxta capellam Sanctæ Caterinæ una istoria consummata. Infirmarium novum, temporibus Willelmi sacristæ, procurante magistro S[ampson], et capellam Sancti Andreae pro majori parte ædificavit et consummavit prædictus Hugo, domino abbate Sampson de boscis suis tigna et quicquid ibidem ligneum est devote ministrante. Pulpitum in ecclesia ædificavit, magna cruce erecta, cum inaginibus beatæ Mariæ et Sancti Johannis sibi allaterantibus. Sedem abbatis in choro, manu Symonis pictoris ad hoc desudante, reddidit conspicuam. Capas bruslatas contulit ad valentiam lx^a marcarum, et calicem aureum v. marcarum pondere. Idem sacrista aulam hospitem et balneatorium plenarie perfecit, domino abbate S[ampson] affluenter

Hugo, sacrist under abbot Samson; he finished the great tower. fol. 121.

^a According to Jocelin (Chron., § 22) William Wardell was succeeded in the office of sacrist by Samson, the precentor. But probably this arrangement did not last long; Jocelin, at any rate, says (Chron., §§ 70, 80) that Hugo was sacrist in 1198.

Walter de Banham.

col. 2.

Successit ei magister Walterus de Banham.^a Hic primo elemosinarius fuit; factus vero sacrista, aulam domini abbatis, antiqua diruta, novam innovavit et plene consummavit. Aqueductum a capite et fonte duobus miliaribus plumbo inclusit, et usque ad claustrum per occultos terræ meatus derivavit. Sanatorium, morte preventus, ad plenum non consummavit. Sed tamen quicquid ibi videmus in marmore aut in imaginibus deauratis, et in opere cæmentario, facto jam sive faciendo, totum fecit, quia in vita sua expensas omnimodas erogavit. Centum marcas de plata et eo amplius, et duas marcas auri, ad tabulam faciendam dedicavit, et ecclesiæ fabricam innovavit, ut patet omni transeunti. Turrim magnam, quæ est juxta capellam Sanctæ Fidis, quam dominus Hugo sacrista quoad cæmentariam consummaverat, hic culmine superposito plenius consummavit. Quinque capas sericas auro bruslatas, et unam casulam bruslatam devote contulit. Tabulam magnam super altari in choro, cum mole illa lapidea cui trabes innititur, consummavit ad plenum magno candelabro deaurato et laminis aureis innovato; decies xx. tignis relictis in cimiterio, quæ dominus Sampson abbas contulit, scilicet quater xx. de bosco de Wirlingwrth, et sexies xx. de boscis de Meleford, ad innovationem ecclesiæ satis accommodis.

^a Walter de Banham probably became sacrist about the year 1200. For it is mentioned in Jocelin's Chronicle (§ 90), that Hugo, his predecessor, though one of four nominated by Samson in that year for the vacant priorate, was really "impotens et insufficiens," as he himself bore witness "cum juramento."

Waltero de Banham^a successit Willelmus de Disce. William of Diss is sacrist for four days.
 Qui cum modo debito ad illud officium electus fuisset, et in illo a die Sancti Thomæ martyris usque ad Circumcisionem Domini, per quatuor videlicet dies, stetit, interim somnum oculi sui capere non potuerunt. Qui videns se ibidem proficere non posse, suam ab abbate Sampsonē petiit cessionem.

Post hunc venit Robertus de Graveley; qui locum vineæ^b emit, et muro lapideo inclusit, ad solatium infirmorum et minorum. Navim ecclesiæ de novō contignavit, et celuram ultra Sanctum Eadmundum fecit, et picturæ varietate decoravit. Mortuo autem abbate Sampsonē, a quibusdam Hugo de Northwolde, A.D. 1211.
 a quibusdam Robertus prædictus ad abbatiam fuerat electus. Hic vero Robertus, durante inter ipsos non modico tempore controversia memorata, utrique parti expensas invenit sufficientes. Cum autem contra eundem Robertum processu temporis processum fuisset, fol. 121 b. et in officio sacristiæ post sententiam diffinitivam aliquanto tempore stetisset, electus fuit ad abbatiam de Thorneye. Huic successit Ricardus de Insula, qui cum ibidem non multo tempore stetisset, electus est in abbatem Burtoniæ.^c Qui, abbate Hugone ad episcopatum Elyensem electo, electus fuit iterum ad abbatiam Sancti Eadmundi. He is elected abbot of Thorney. Richard de l'Isle, sacrist under Hugo de Northwold; but soon goes to Burton.

Cui successit Ricardus de Newport.^d Hic vetus capitulum destruxit, et novum a fundamentis construxit. Piscariam de Ikelingh non modico pretio comparavit; magnam etiam campanam in majori campanario, quæ dicitur Newport, sumptu non mediocri fieri fecit. Hic etiam, meremio ab abbate Hugone secundo in manerio de Meleford comparato, omnia Richard de Newport, sacrist.

Qui cum ibidem non diu stetisset, electus est ad prioratum Sancti Eadmundi, meritis sanctitatis suæ exigentibus. Nam ad sacrum ejus tumulum, prout vidimus, nonnulli a diversis infirmitatibus per merita viri Dei curantur.

Post hunc factus est sacrista Nicholaus, natus in patria de Warewick. Qui inter multa alia bona quæ fecit, fundi fecit campanam optimam in choro, quæ dicitur campana sacristæ. Ab isto primo ablata fuit pixis oblationum^b et assignata thesaurariis. Hic in ultimis diebus suis paralyti percussus sponte cessit, et in infirmaria multos¹ transigens annos, de sacristia annuatim dum vixit xl. solidos ad species percepit.

Cui successit Symon de Luyton, vir prudentissimus et circumspectus. Qui modicam ibi faciens moram ad altiora non immerito proventus, factus est prior Sancti Eadmundi. In ipso officio stans, fundi fecit campanam in choro quæ dicitur Luyton. Post non multum vero tempus vocatus est ad abbatiam Sancti Eadmundi.

Ricardus de Colecestre. Hujus tempore, pacificata lite^a inter comitem Ricardum Glovern[iæ] et nos, concessum est eidem comiti pro bono pacis manerium de Manhal cum Breninge, terra apud Gaisle ad elemosinarium pertinens, et manerium de Suthwolde spectans ad celerarium. Hujus tempore consideratum fuit per conventum quod in ruinis ecclesiæ reparandis tantum xij. libras poneret per annum, et non amplius. Veruntamen, ultra prædictas xij. libras, fecit novam aulam quæ dicitur Spanne ad recreationem conventus. Hic per duos annos habuit de conventu omnia maneria celerariæ firmaria faciendo plenas firmas, sed conventus interim per annum respondebat illi de xx. libris. Tunc vero temporis celerarius fuit frater Willelmus de Beccles, cui dictus sacrista in omnibus, tanquam firmarius, de his quæ ad coquinam et ad subcelerarium pertinent respondebat; et etiam de pisis, videlicet de elemosina celerarii. Infra vero quindenam qua dictam firmam dimisit, paralyti percussus, et in brevi vitæ valefaciens, appositus est ad patres suos in senectute bona.

sacrist.

Huic successit Symon de Kingeston natus in comitatu Cantebrigiæ, qui prius subcelerarii, postea vero camerarii functus erat officio. Qui, sponte cedens vel invitus, nichil dignum memoria egit ibidem.

Simon de Kingeston.

^a pacificata lite. Of this lawsuit, which involved a claim on the part of Richard of Clare, earl of Gloucester, to the valuable manor of Mildenhall, we hear as far back as 1252 (Matt. Par., v. 297, Rolls ed.). When Simon of Luton came back from Rome, in 1258, burdened with debt, and uncertain how to deal with the intruding Franciscans, this pending lawsuit with the powerful earl (ib., 688) was his principal trouble. Of the "finalis concordia" between the parties, there is a copy in the Kempe Register (Harl. 645, f. 212). It is without date, but it must have been concluded some time between 1258 and 1262, for in the last-mentioned year earl Richard died (Flores Historiarum, ii. 475, Rolls ed.). At the price of the concessions mentioned in the text, besides others of less importance not here particularised, the earl of Gloucester renounced his claim to Mildenhall.

William de
Luton, sac-
rist.

A.D. 1294.

Cui successit Willelmus de Lutone, a cameraria ad officium assumptus memoratum. Hujus tempore concessa est regi medietas omnium bonorum temporalium et spiritualium, tam religiosorum quam prelatorum et ecclesiasticarum personarum, in subsidium guerræ suæ contra regem Franciæ. Qui tam in contributione illa quam in aliis casibus fortuitis et infortunatis multipliciter est molestatus et vehementer afflictus. Hic primus cultum Dei in ecclesia, et circa Sanctum Eadmundum, Sanctum Botulphum, aliaque sanctuaria, in cereis et luminaribus diminuit, et plusquam dimidiavit; quod sibi in prosperum cessisse non arbitror. Et quamvis in aliis honestus homo fuit et modestus, in his tamen quæ conventui facere tenebatur, utpote pitantiis, misericordiis, et hujusmodi, superrigidus fuit et austerus. Nec per multos annos ante obitum suum aliquid de hujusmodi, nisi pro voluntatis suæ arbitrio, poterat extorqueri. Maneriorum tamen ædificia et redditus in villa utiliter reparavit et decenter adornavit. Moriens fere nullam reliquit pecuniam; in magna tamen pecunia diversis creditoribus et maxime servitoribus ecclesiæ tenebatur. Staura siquidem, et instauramenta maneriorum, et maxime in bidentibus ampliavit.

Anno Domini m^occc^o primo et anno regni domini regis Edwardi filii regis Henrici vicesimo nono, in crastino apostolorum Simonis et Judæ, dominus Johannes de Norwolde abbas Sancti Edmundi diem clausit extremum, cujus animæ propitiatur Deus, et exstitit baronia Sancti Edmundi in manu domini regis a prædicto die usque ad diem Sancti Laurentii proximo sequentem. Quo die dominus Thomas de Totington, abbas Sancti Eadmundi, de curia rediens Romana, singulis negotiis suis ibidem prius feliciter expeditis, fecit dicto domino regi fidelitatem Londonii, et liberata sibi fuit baronia sua integraliter per eundem regem. Circa festum Omnium Sanctorum proximo sequens concessum fuit domino regi auxilium ad primogenitam filiam suam maritandam,^a quod quidem prius transactis xiiij. annis erat, ut dicitur, concessum, nondum tamen levatum. Unde dominus rex petit nunc de quolibet feudo militari xl. solidos per breve suum et super hoc misit justitios suos ad quemlibet comita tum, ad inquirendum de hujusmodi feudis. Unde quam plures compatriotæ, dictam petitionem et ejusdem processum minus prudenter intelligentes, super maneria religiosorum ubique imposuerunt feuda militaria, ac si essent laica tenementa, quæ quidem revera tenentur in liberam elemosinam et puram. Unde dominus rex postea ex gravi conquestione eorundem talem perpendens errorem, eisdem breve suum concessit, quod quidem dominus abbas prædictus impetravit pro se et ecclesia sua in hoc forma:—

marriage was not celebrated till 1293 (Flor. Hist., iii. 86; Rolls ed.). There had been a proposal for her marriage with Alfonso III. of Arragon in 1286, but it had come to nothing.

^a See Jocelyn's Chronicle, § 52. The abbot of Bury held the honour of the king by the service of forty knights' fees, but there were, in fact, fifty or fifty-two knights holding of the abbot in Samson's time. When a scutage was levied, Samson obliged all his knights to account to him individually, while he himself only accounted to the king for the customary forty knights' fees. It seems that the sheriff of Essex wished to levy the aid of 40s. on every knight holding of the abbey.

server. He signed the barons' letter to the pope in 1309, and another letter to the king on the question of the appointment of the ordainers in 1310. In 1312 we find him constable of the Tower; in 1322 he was in attendance on the king in Yorkshire, as "sibi secretarius et familiaris." Now, in 1326, he is engaged in the queen's treacherous enterprise against her husband (Ann. Paulini).

patriæ, et multis aliis Anglicis et alienigenis, apud Waleton,^a fugientibus custodibus quos ibi constituit dominus rex, scilicet domino Roberto de Watevile et aliis. Et die Sancti Michaelis venit regina cum suis apud Sanctum Edmundum. Rex autem si obviasset cum paucis victoriam habuisset, sed usus malo consilio cum domino Hugone Dispensatore filio et aliis privatis fugit versus Walliam; et regina cum suis persequatur, et semper multiplicabatur ejus pompa sive potentia, aliorum enervata. Tandem Bristollia adveniens præcepit sibi et filio reddi castrum, in quo fuit dominus Hugo Dispensator pater, et custos castrum erat Dovenaldus de Mar Scotus, qui reddidit castrum, et dominus Hugo Dispensator pater erat vilissime tractus et suspensus. Regina, ut dicebatur, voluit salvasse^b eum, sed amici Thomæ comitis Lancastriæ, cujus judex fuit in occisione, dissuaserunt. Et sic procedentes versus Walliam, et juxta castrum Kerfilii, ceperunt dominum Hugone[m] Dispensatorem filium, regis consiliarium, et ipsum traxerunt et nimis afflixerunt et tandem suspenderunt. Et sic non cessarunt usque quo cepissent regem Edwardum a conquestu secundum, qui, captus, positus est in custodia mala in castro de Berkele usque ad mortem. Magister autem Robertus de Baldoc,^c cancellarius Angliæ et consiliarius regis Edwardi a conquestu secundi, captus est et in carcere apud London tortus est. Magister

^c Baldoc. The chancellor Baldock had been archdeacon of Middlesex in 1323. Having fallen into the hands of Orleton, bishop of Hereford, one of the most prominent men of the queen's faction, he was imprisoned in his house in London. The citizens took him by force and brought him to Newgate, where he died "in great anguish" (Ann. Paulini, 320). The clergy of London appear to have been shocked by his cruel death, and gave him a sumptuous funeral.

cœperunt mala multiplicari in terra; nam communitas
London in malum erecta spoliavit^e mercatores Lumeorum, et dominati sunt nimis. Nam comites et barones, episcopos et abbates, et omnes magnos ac-

A.D. 1327. alii villani et capitosi ribaldi de villa Sancti Edmundi mane convenerunt in taberna, et edocti per malefactores London miserunt pro aliis, qui prælocuti ordinaverunt et conspiraverunt destruere et deprædari abbatiam. Et eodem die post prandium illi idem congregati sunt ad aulam gildæ, et miserunt pro valentioribus totius villæ Sancti Edmundi, qui simul omnes fuerunt jurati fovere et manutenere propositum et querelas contra abbatem et conventum. In crastino igitur Sancti Hillarii, feria scilicet quarta, fecerunt pulsare campanam de le Tolhous a mane usque ad nonam, et congregati sunt multi et armaverunt se, circa tria milia, et abbatiam obsidentes primo fregērunt magnas portas, et ingressi fecerunt insultum, et quosdam monachos et plures servientes verberaverunt et male tractaverunt et vulneraverunt, videlicet dompnum Robertum de Chikeneye, et dompnum E. de Totyngton, et elemosinarium, et alios. Portas et ostia subcellariæ fregerunt, et clipsedras de doleis extraxerunt, et cervisiam effuderunt et totaliter perdidērunt, et quicquid poterant asportaverunt. Deinde claustrum ingressi, cistulas, id est caroles, et armoriola fregerunt, et libros ac omnia in eis inventa similiter asportaverunt. Postea cameram prioris intrantes, unum calicem, aurum et argentum, vasa et jocalia secum tulerunt, priorem et tertium priorem vi secum abduxerunt, et in aula Gildæ incarceraverunt, et multis opprobriis saturaverunt, et tres monachos qui perrexerunt visitare et consolari suum priorem retinuerunt, et cum eo tribus diebus et ii. noctibus incarceraverunt. Sacristiam fregerunt, cistas et omnia clausa diruperunt, aurum et argentum, libros, registra, et vasa argentea sustulerunt, et vinum ultra modum consumpserunt. Registra et munimenta et cartas sacristiæ, et unum equum pretio x. librarum abduxerunt. Deinde perrexerunt ad camerariam et infirmariam et ad alia officia, asportantes omnia quæ eis Postea ingressi sunt thesaurariam ecclesiæ, et inde aurum et argentum, florenos et jocalia, multa vasa argentea et lapides pretiosos, cartas regum, paparum bullas, et alia munimenta libertatum secum abstulerunt. Regressi igitur ad aulam Gildæ ammonuerunt aldermannum, nomine Ricardum de Berton, qui ab eis in festo Sancti Michaelis fuerat electus, et ab abbate et conventu, ut moris est, admissus, et juratus per sacristam. Statuerunt in loco suo capitose et, injuste Johannem de Berton, fratrem dicti Roberti,¹ irrequisito consensu abbatis et conventus, ad manutenendum querelam eorum. Item janitores portarum villæ removerunt, et alios in locis eorum posuerunt. Et prohibuerunt ne conventus pulsaret campanas suas quousque mandarent eis, et hoc duravit a vespera usque ad vesperam.

Die Veneris immediate sequente prædicti villani reducerunt priorem et xiiij. monachos quos incarceraverunt ad abbatiam, et mortem minantes fecerunt eos signare communi sigillo capituli unam acquietantiam omnium actionum quas habere possent versus eos a principio mundi usque tunc, et unum scriptum obligatorium ii. mille librarum, et unam acquietantiam v^o marcarum et l. doliorum vini, in quibus tenebantur abbati et conventui pro transgressionibus prius illatis, levandorum de eis qua hora injuste contra eos insurgerent. Abbas autem toto tempore prædicto fuit London in parlamento; sed tandem per internuntios monachos audiens de dictis injuriis et dampnis ecclesiæ suæ factis, per consilium magnorum qui fuerunt in parlamento venit domum ad succurrendum conventui et ecclesiæ suæ, die Mercurii proxima ante Purificationem beatæ Mariæ. Quo cognito, dicti villani armati, associatis ribi quibusdam militibus, vi ingressi cameram abbatis, petierunt signari quandam cartam, multum abbati et conventui contrariam et prejudicalem, videlicet de communitate et de communi sigillo et aldermanno perpetuis habendis. Et quia abbas non concessit, tractaverunt eum viliter, et de loco ad locum pepulerunt, vibrantes arma, et intentantes sibi et conventui mortem si non paruisset. Abbas vero, paratus mori in causa, sed fratribus suis condolens, sic arctatus concessit eis petitionem suam. Et quia dimiserat sigillum suum apud Walden, coegerunt eum ut unum de capellanis suis mitteret pro eo, quem comitati sunt sex armati de villa die noctuque ne evaderet. Interim tota abbatia custodita erat circumquaque cum magno numero virorum armatorum, ne abbas discederet, et sic eum incarceraverunt in monasterio suo. Cumque sigillum esset allatum de Walden, compulerunt abbatem et conventum ingredi capitulum, et ipsi villani cum Sathanæ satellitibus ingressi sunt cum eis, positis custodiis ad ostium capituli, et timore mortis coactos fecerunt eos signare sigillo capituli et sigillo abbatis unam cartam, de communitate, et de communi sigillo, gilda mercatoria, et aldermanno perpetuis habendis, magnam exhæredationem ecclesiæ continentem, cujus copiam et inspectionem abbati petenti denegaverunt. Similiter signare coegerunt abbatem et conventum ibidem unam relaxationem omnium actionum et transgressionum, et unam obligationem v. mille librarum eis solvendarum, si infringerent pactum, et non facerent irrotulari in thesauraria regis infra tempus limitatum.

When it is brought, the abbot and convent, under compulsion, sign a charter granting what the rioters demand, and a release of all their lawless acts.

A.D. 1327. The abbot returns to London, and declares his wrongs in full Parliament. Hiis peractis, abbas permissione eorum reversus est ad parliamentum, quia erat receptor billarum. Villani autem sequebantur ipsum, sperantes eum omnia prædicta completurum; sed ipse coram magnatibus qui in parlamento fuerunt retulit passionem suam et suorum et quia metu mortis et incendii ita peregisset. Unde Enraged at this, the villeins continue their ravages. fol. 118 b. villani prædicti redeuntes, diabolo succensi, dampna et injurias continuarunt, et indies multiplicarunt, in pratis, pascuis, domibus, et redditibus debitas consuetudines impediens, decimas et oblationes ecclesiasticas subtrahentes, et sub pœna prohibentes. Die insuper Lunæ præcedente festum Cathedræ Sancti Petri, vi et armis ingressi sunt dormitorium monachorum, lectos eorum perscrutantes, et omnia mobilia ibi inventa Plunder of the dormitory and the abbot's wardrobe. furtive et violenter asportantes. Postea garderobam abbatis fregerunt, et arma et alia ibidem mobilia hinc inde inventa sustulerunt. Et sic multotiens et multis modis conventum terruerunt, frangentes vitreas fenestras ecclesiæ, et multa alia enormia perpetrantes, pacemque regis et protectionem abbatiæ vilipendentes, ita quod vix ausi sunt monachi vel servientes eorum portas egredi, propter clamorem eorum et timorem. Promiserunt etiam quod omnes de patria, tam villani quam liberi, qui causam illorum manutenere vellent, essent liberi ab omni theloneo et omni servitio per totam Angliam, virtute cartarum quas penes se dicebant habere, unde plus quam xx. mille de patria^a ad eorum auxilia concurrebant. Et quidam portaverunt cedulas libertatis, sed minime signatas. Ceperunt insuper carrectas abbatis et conventus, oneratas victualibus et aliis necessariis pro sustentatione conventus, et duxerunt ad aulam Gildæ, prohibentes sub pœna ne quis venderet eis esculenta vel poculenta sub pœna mortis. Et ut penuriam aquæ paterentur, fregerunt conductum aquæ ne ad eos descenderet. Deinde, post festum Sancti Dunstani, campanam pulsaverunt, et congregati sunt, tam de patria quam de villa, plusquam x. mille hominum, cum armis et pencellis præcedentibus more belli; quos duo clerici ecclesiarum beatæ Mariæ et Sancti Jacobi in tunicis cum vexillis et pencellis præcesserunt, et accesserunt, et deposuerunt portas ecclesiæ et portaverunt in villam, et ascenderunt turrim et more bellico munierunt. Portas gardini fregerunt, et pontes ruperunt, et meremium alienarunt, et ij. battellas sive naviculas quæ fuerunt in aqua sustulerunt. Fecerunt etiam unum fossatum in medio prati sacristæ, et dixerunt quod fuit de communa; domos et redditus abbatiæ et servientium eorum in villa existentes prostraverunt, et meremium abduxerunt. Pro quibus transgressionibus puniendis et remediis quærendis, abbas et conventus miserunt ad curiam Romanam quendam monachum, qui ibi post breve tempus mortuus est. Subsequenter et illi de villa miserunt ad prædictam curiam duos clericos, scilicet magistrum Johannem de Refham, et magistrum Willelmum de Coulingge, ad accusandum abbatem et conventum, et pro ecclesia Sanctæ Mariæ et Sancti Jacobi sibi approprianda; qui nichil expedientes reversi sunt, asserentes bullas suas impetratas contra abbatem et conventum impignoratas pro fine et expensis xl. li[bris], quas suppliciter petebant. Sed aliqui alii astutiores, falsitatem eorum intelligentes, derisorie concesserunt, uni ecclesiam Sanctæ Mariæ, et alteri ecclesiam Sancti Jacobi.

Post hæc terrores indies creverunt conventui, et maiorum numerus villanorum et extraneorum augmentatus est, et maxime auxilio et consilio fratrum Minorum de Babbewelle, qui monachis fuerunt tempore illo graviter infesti. Quia, quando prior fuit cum sociis suis incarceratus in aula Gildæ, venerunt sex fratres Minores, scilicet frater Thomas de Cantabrig[ia] et frater J. de

Aspal, et alii quatuor senes, et petierunt licentiam a villanis ut possent habitare infra villam Sancti Edmundi in loco quem aliquando occupare frustra videbantur; sed non obtinuerunt, contradicentibus capellanis villæ et timentibus quod auferrent lucra eorum. Sed tamen in alio confederati sunt cum capellanis de villa. Cum enim secundum communem modum conventus et capellani villæ tribus diebus rogationum processionem facerent circa villam, tunc monachi non audebant egredi propter metum mortis, quia dicebatur quod omnes monachi occiderentur et seculares capellani ut prius restituerentur. Accurrerunt fratres Minores cum cruce, et procedebant cum capellanis et parochianis circa villam, canendo letanias quod nunquam ante fecerunt nec post. Processum etiam ultra eorum furia, quod retraxerunt plene decimas ecclesiarum et oblationes, ita quod capellani altaribus deservientes non habuerunt victui suo necessaria, sed conventus de diversis corrodiis in abbacia necessaria eis ministrabant. Quod maledicti perpentes, sub pœna privationis capitum inhibuerunt prædictis capellanis ne ulterius in ecclesiis deservirent, malentes tanquam pagani vivere et mori quam ab eis sacramenta recipere. Unde conventus ordinavit quod Radulphus Caston, tunc sacrista, cum alio monacho Johanne de Stokes qui tintinabulum portaret, quia nullus clericus audebat, infirmos visitaret, mortuos sepeliret, pueros baptizaret, missas celebraret. Et sic officium capellani parochialis secundum numerum eorum persolvit, sæpius in die et aliquando de nocte sacramentum Eucharistiæ ministrando. Unde multas blasphemias opprobria et etiam pericula incurrebat. Dicebant illi filii Sathanæ de sacrista, quod diabolus portabat Deum. Sed cum nec sic se viderunt prævalere, quoddam facinus execrabile machinati sunt, videlicet quod facerent unam mulierem fingere se infirmam, quæ mitteret pro sacrista ut ministraret sibi sacramenta; quem suam confessionem audientem amplecte-

Sed decepta est eorum dolositas, quia sacrista fuit præmunitus a quodam amico ut non iret ad talem infirmam. Quo comperto prior inhibuit sacristæ ne de cetero tale officium exerceret, committens Deo negotium. Confessa est postea prædicta mulier sacristæ facinus suum præmeditatum. His et aliis terroribus concussi quidam monachi alibi divertentes in maneriis, aliqui in cenobiis et cum amicis latuerunt. Tunc dominus Robertus Morlee compassus est monachis, et venit apud Eldhaghe cum magna populi multitudine ad succurrendum monachis, et fecit concordiam pro tempore inter monachos et villam. Sed statim post recessum suum homines de villa malitiam suam continuantes prioribus pejora perpetuarunt.

Vain attempt of Sir Robert Morley to heal the breach between the abbey and the town.

Cum prædicta gens villæ Sancti Edmundi nec minis nec mendaciis nec persecutionibus nec deprædationibus propositum suum consequi possent, ad consumptionem monasterii et monachorum interitum prosilientes, in ferro et flamma conati sunt omnia vastare. Unde die Dominica, in festo Sancti Lucae, post vespervas, anno scilicet Domini millesimo ccc^{mo}xxvij^o, intrantes presbiterium maledictiones et minas mortis monachis præsentibus intulerunt. Sed illi, pro Deo et ecclesia malentes mori quam sic torqueri, terrores minantibus reddiderunt, saltem verbis eos ab ecclesia repellentes. Nec mora; illi recedentes fecerunt pulsare diutissime campanam de le Tolhous, et campanam ignis in turri Sancti Jacobi. Quibus auditis, congregati sunt omnes majores et minores totius villæ, videlicet Johannes de Berton, Robertus de Ffoxton, et Robertus de Eriswelle, cum tota villa, simul cum ingenti multitudine patriæ et ignotorum, rectorum et presbiterorum xxviii., clericorum et laicorum, et per confederationem inter

Hic rapiuntur equi de fundo martyris æqui;
 Clamant raptores, faciunt patiendo dolores;
 Post veniunt flentes, enses offerre volentes,
 Abbatem quærunt, contriti corde fuerunt;
 Hos absolvebat humiles quos esse videbat.

De naufragantibus per Sanctum Edmundum liberatis.

Johannes quidam Brabantinus fide qua potuit et juramento asseruit, quod cum in die Sancti Clementis papæ cum sociis in mare velificaret, associatis ei pluribus aliis navibus, et ad quendam portum cuperent omnes applicare, repente orta est tempestas in mari, turbans omnes navigantes, sicut vulgo creditur, quod qui illius sancti die opera marina exercent, finem dubium consequentur. Cumque vis tempestatis eos præoccuparet, aliis navibus hinc inde pereuntibus, solliciti de vita, omnesque in desperatione positi, mortem adesse formidabant, maxime cum omnia armamenta navis exposita fuerant perditioni. Tandem cum omnes sanctos familiares pro auxilio invocarent, recordatus ille alienigena regis et martyris Edmundi,—“Frequenter audivi quendam sanctum “ nomine Edmundum multa mirabilia dono Dei in pelago “ operari; explicemus illi corda nostra et corporum pericula, “ votivos sibi nos fore spondentes, si a præsentis periculo “ dignatus fuerit nos eripere, et vivos ad portum ducti- “ tare.” Cumque omnes unanimi assensu conclamarent, et succursum ab eo cfflagitarent, concito cursu navis, omni armamento destituta, ad optatum portum feliciter emigravit.

Idem Johannes Brabantinus, ob amorem Sancti Edmundi Angliam incolens, asserere consuevit quod in monasterio Eliensi, in domo hospitem, cum quodam nuncio regis pernottavit, præsentem quodam garcione quem credidit ipsius nuncii ministrum fuisse. Cumque mane surrexissent ut iter arriperent, perpendit idem Johannes res suas, scilicet diploidem, capellum, gladium, et cultellum cum cirotecis deesse, et prædictum garcionem recessisse. Aggreditur nuncium prædictum, credens illius fuisse famulum, quod et nuncius ille negavit; unde unus dampno confusus, et alter rubore perfusus quærere statuerunt ut amissa recuperarent. Suspicientesque prædonem versus Cantibriggiam divertisse, prosequi statuerunt, nuncius navigio, Johannes prædictus campestri via. Qui quidem Johannes itinerando, memor beneficii quod per Sanctum Edmundum receperat, sic oravit; “Sancte Edmunde, “esto mediator apud Dominum ut res meas recipiam, et tibi “offeram universas.” Vixque voto completo conspexit sibi obvium formosæ staturæ et faciei hominem indutum vestibibus tinctisque¹ coloribus jacinctinis, quærentem causam tantæ festinationis. Qui prius distulit enodare, sed iterum et iterum quærenti totius facti ordinem enarravit. Cui ille, “Retorque iter, et veni ad villam quæ vocatur Littleport,^a “et in quarta domo ab aqua distante reperies quem quæris, “habentem unum pedem infra limen ostii et alterum exterius situatum; unam partem clamidis vendidit, alteramque “pro defectu emptoris sibi retinuit.” Cumque finem dicendi faceret, revocavit præfatus Johannes nuncium, dicens, “Ne “labores incassum; ecce, iste homo totius curæ nostræ “seriem mihi indicavit.” Et ille, “Quisnam est ipse?” “Ecce,” inquit, “juxta me stantem poteris intueri.” Qui cum obnixius respiceret, neminem vidit; nec ipse Johannes qui nuncium revocabat. Intellexerunt ergo ex visione desiderium eorum citius adimplendum, et simul pergentes omnia sicut dictum erat facto et ordine invenerunt. Unde Johannes, non immemor voti sui, omnia reportans beato martyri offerebat, quæ ad devotionem intuentium multis annis juxta feretrum dependebant.

Anno Domini M^oCC^oLXX. erat quidam paterfamilias apud Donwicum, cujus domum nocturno tempore aggressi sunt quidam latrones infringere et deprædari. Qui de humano diffidens adjutorio ad divinum se convertit præsidium. Interim, dum latrones conantur machinamentis aditum sibi præparare, præfatus paterfamilias, filo in circuitu domus suæ interius circumducto, votoque ad Sanctum Edmundum, Dei et ejusdem sancti protectioni se commisit. Quo facto, dictos latrones meritis Sancti Edmundi Deus in tantum compescuit, ut etiam aditibus undique patefactis aditus sibi invenire non possent.

Quomodo Sanctus Edmundus terruit regem Edwardum, eo quod libertatem ecclesiae in manu sua ceperat.

Circa annum Domini MCCXCI. rex Edwardus, filius regis Henrici, pro guerris suis omnes libertates Angliæ et maxime virorum ecclesiasticorum in manu sua seisivit. Quo facto quilibet prælatus Angliæ pro libertate ecclesiæ suæ ut ad statum pristinum eam reduceret, laboravit. Inter quos abbas Sancti Edmundi, Johannes nomine, ut ecclesiæ suæ libertatem recuperaret, sumptibus magnis et laboribus quasi continuis decertabat. Sed dum cupiditas jam excrevit et malignorum consilium instituit, ut postposita Dei et sanctorum reverentia omnino fisci mederentur ingluviem, perpendens abbas præfatus hominum duritiam ingravescere, et sanctorum reverentiam et sanctimoniam oblivisci, et seipsum ad labores ulterius non sufficere, cartas privilegiorum Sancti Edmundi regis et martyris, a regibus datas et a successoribus confirmatas, in parlamento apud Westmonasterium protulit in medio, sic dicens, “ Domine mi rex, prædecessores tui privilegia Sancto Edmundo concesserunt, quorum cartæ præsentibus sunt; quæ quidem privilegia voluntarie revocasti et detines. Et ego senio confectus et laboribus pro illis recuperandis debilitatus ultra prosequi non valeo. Sed coram summo iudice causam inter martyrem Edmundum et ecclesiam ejus et te, dominum meum terrenum, terminandam committo.” Et valedicens regi et proceribus, tristis recessit, ad propria tendens. Cumque nocte sequente rex in stratu suo quiesceret, ut affectatum caperet soporem, repente territus propter quamdam visionem sibi ostensam de stratu suo prosiliit, vocans suos, et vociferans quod Sanctus Edmundus ipsum alterum regem Suanum, quem apud Geynesburgh occiderat, faceret puniendo. Et statim post fecit proclamari, quod quicumque libertatem¹ prosecuti fuerant sine mora ad curiam properarent, asserens quod Sanctus Edmundus vexillum pro singulis erexisset.

Quomodo Sanctus Edmundus terruit comitem Lincolnice, pro libertatibus ecclesie de assensu suo in manu regis captis, et de devotione prædicti comitis erga Edmundum postea multipliciter ostensa.

Devotion shown by Henry, earl of Lincoln, to St. Edmund.

The earl used to tell of a deliverance which befell him in Aquitaine, after invocation of the saint.

He offered at the shrine a jewel of price, and made us valuable bequests,

Comes Lincolnensis, Henricus de Lacy,^a qui forte consiliarius fuit prædicti domini regis, et particeps facti ut libertates in manu regis caperentur, dum apud Stratfordiam membra quieti dedisset, terrore nimio percussus est. Et sic qui prius fuerat sancto alienus, voluntate et munerum oblatione multipliciter factus est devotus. Venit enim peregrinando visitare Sanctum Edmundum; et ibi jocale pretiosum crucem scilicet ex auro et argento ac lapidibus pretiosis ornatam, continentem quamdam ligni sanctæ crucis portionem, offerens astante plebe, retulit in aperto quod, cum esset in Aquitania nomine regis Anglorum contra regem Franciæ actibus bellicis occupatus, quadam die hostium cuneos, ut eum morti tradrent vel saltem captivitate subjugarent, prospexit ocis adventare; respiciensque ad adjutorium hominum et suorum commilitonum, ut succursum præberent ne in manus adversariorum incideret, neminem suorum præter custodem animalis cui insedit adesse videt. Tactus ergo dolore cordis intrinsecus, et cernens humanum auxilium abesse, confugit ad divinum, rogans Deum et martyrem Sanctum Edmundum, ut meritis ejus et precibus impetraret sibi remedium, vovensque quod tali pacto jocale prædictum, quod præ omnibus dilexit, sibi devote conferret. Quo facto statim exercitum suum ita densum et expeditum circa se conspexit ac si nullus de numero defuisset. Et completo sermone sic sanctum affatur: "Hoc jocale est quod tibi promisi, hoc tibi offero, martyr Christi sanctissime." Nec solum ex hoc donativo patuit ad sanctum ejus devotio, sed ex pluribus aliis donariis sancto martyri devote collatis Dedit enim vestiario unam pretiosam capam bruslatam; item alia vice crucem magni pretii auream, cum lapidibus pretio-

Item legavit viginti marcas pro ymagine de argento facienda et deauranda, in cuius fronte seu pectore prædictus lapis situaretur; sed ad martyris injuriam, per executorum incuriam minus juste defuncti voluntatem complementium, detentæ sunt, cum uno calice aureo pond. xl. oz., quem similiter Sancto Edmundo legavit. Legavit etiam post mortem matris suæ beato Edmundo, pro refectorio monachorum suorum, unam cupam argenteam et deauratam, et miro opere fabricatam, quam dixit et asseruit fuisse Sancti Edmundi in vita sua, ob cuius honorem diebus festivis sacerdos ejus superpellicio indutus ex hoc convivantibus propinavit. Sed et reverenda mater ejus, perpendens executorum negligentiam, prædictam cupam cum uno pretioso saphiro Sancto Edmundo destinavit. De ultione capta super dominum Johannem de Bello monte militem.

Ad venerationem sanctorum et terrorem peccatorum; anno A.D. 1341. Domino m^occc^oxlj^o narratur contigisse, quod quidam miles John de Beaumont exclaimed one day, how much the application of the gold and jewels at the shrine would help the king in his wars.

strenuus in armis militaribus, nomine Johannes de Bello monte,^a accessit ad feretrum Sancti Edmundi. Qui, dum aurum et argentum, lapides pretiosos, et varia ornamenta ibidem conspexisset, in hæc verba prorupit; "O quantum possent ista jocalia et thesaurus promovere regem nostrum in expeditione guerræ suæ!" nesciens vel dissimulans quod plus valent subsidia sanctorum quam infinitus cumulus thesaurorum terrenorum. Cujus verba assistentibus et audientibus plurimum displicuerunt. Quid plura? ille recedens et, sicut justiciarium regis.*

William de Gyslingham, after making a similar speech in the Black Chamber at Westminster, fell down and expired. What the king said.

Quidam miles de Estsexia, nomine Thomas Gubira, audiens prædictum dominum Johannem de Bellomonte in hastiludio, vindice Deo pro Sancto Edmundo, sic perisse, dixit, quod cum juvenis esset, intravit cum magistro suo cameram regis apud Westmonasterium quæ vocatur nigra camera, ubi rex consuluit quibus sumptibus manutenere posset guerram suam. Ingessit se justiciarius magnus, nomine Willelmus de Gyslingham. Volens aucupare favorem magnorum et minuere landem sanctorum, dixit, — “O quanta scrinia et qualia “ thesauro ornata, nichil continentia nisi ossa mortuorum,

“ quæ si in fisco redigerentur, non esset alibi recurrendum.”
Quo dicto confestim in medio cecidit, et exspiravit. Quod infortunium rex videns ait, “Extrahite canem istum, qui

GLOSSARIAL NOTES.

228. bresteches (i.e., breteches; see Godefroy) od kernels, "crenelated or loopholed parapets"; kernel = creneau.
231. Read ruiliez, "border-fences," "stockades." The word must evidently be connected with the mod. Fr. ruilée, which Littré thus explains, "bordure de plâtre ou de mortier, qui sert à lier une "rangée de tuiles avec un mur." The ground-notion is regularity; O. Fr. ruile, riule, Lat. regula.
- 261, 1420. honour, honur. An "honour" was a feudally governed district, consisting of several knights' fees.
355. Il unt ceste gent. There is an anacoluthon here; the verb resceut is made to agree with the new subject (li rei) introduced in l. 356, and not with the plural il.
510. asenement. In La Curne de Sainte Palaye's dictionary asené occurs for assensé; whence asenement would mean "sensibly," "discreetly." Asene and assene, connected with assigner, are also used in the sense of "well-placed," "well-suited." But the first explanation seems preferable.
569. Ne ai son. I adopt Prof. O'Donnell's suggestion,—that son is for soin. "Nor do I care to regard as mine the child of another "man."
703. Si est il feit li reis de mey. The natural order of the words is changed. "All is over with me, the king." Unless reis, "campaign," "expedition," is intended; in which case the meaning would be, "My career is ended." But Prof. Atkinson is of opinion that the first is the more probable explanation.
801. The seneghan of the MS. appeared at first sight to be unintelligible; but M. Paul Meyer, upon the passage being referred to him, at once declared it be one of those tags or decorative phrases in which the works of the trouvères abound, and to mean sen[s] e[n]ghan, "without deceit."
1375. lobens. Hauban, (see Littré,) is a "shroud" or "stay"; Flem. hoof-band.

1400. Godefroy explains s'esbainer by s'égayer, s'amuser; the meaning would therefore be, "in which (i.e. the nearness to the Saxon "shore,) the ship hardly takes pleasure."
1432. ne li fu bele. Lit. "it was not fair for him"; i.e., he did not like it.
1455. li sigle i egier. This obscure passage has been seen by M. Paul Meyer and Prof. Atkinson, but no satisfactory explanation has occurred to either of them. The general meaning is clear: "the breeze is strong; they have the sails full and drawing; and it did not suit them to take in sail."
1456. haneker. O.E. hanken, Sw. hanka; "to tie up," "to make fast." See Laȝamon, 25,871, þine feðer-heomen ihanehed mid golden; Wycl. Engl. Works, iii. 28, "lappinge of pride
"whereinne he hadde . . . hankid þi chosun."
1574. a tut dis mes. This is another tag; padding to fill up the verse, and round the rhyme. See dis and mes in the Glossary.
1968. Lanier ceo ait malveis requist. The line appears to be corrupt. Perhaps dit should be read instead of ait, and requist taken as a noun. "The villain said this,--a malicious inquiry," referring to the question in l. 1985.
2028. dromunz. Vessels of various kinds are here named; the dromund and the chaland are well known; the word esneke (Engl. "smack"?) is also of frequent occurrence; and M. Paul Meyer reminds me that bouce must have the same origin as the bussa (O.E. "busse") of Ducange. Matthew Paris has the word under the form bucca, "decem magnas buccas." (Works, ii., 363, Rolls ed.) But what is a hallo? and what does pertos mean as an epithet of barges?
2041. amantes. "Up-risings," "mountings"; i.e., over the sea waves, I suppose.
2279. The transcriber, whose work is, generally speaking, of admirable accuracy, here misread the MS. and wrote Deys, which has no meaning. The letter is in fact not D, but an unusual form of R, as may be seen on reference to Chassant's work on Palæography, which was kindly shown to me by Mr. Bickley of the British Museum.
2350. colvert culvert, colibert, "a serf"; hence, "a wretch," "a villain"; and, used as an adjective, "vile," "base."
2526. engreine. Denis seems to have used the word here in the sense of "wound," "gash," though I cannot find any instance of a similar use elsewhere.
2565. rufflei; 2679, rifflei; "a thicket"; from the Low Latin refletum; see Matt. Paris, vi. 94 (Rolls ed.).

3375. haanz seemed to present some difficulty, but M. Paul Meyer immediately recognized it as a form of ahan, q.v.
3557. Sicum cil entur ceo molle, "while he revolves, or twists, this about that." Prof. Atkinson suggests that the texture of the language is so loose in this poem, that the writer may have formed the word molle for himself, from moliri. But it seems more likely, either that it is from moller, which is a recognized variant of mouler, "to mould," or that it belongs to modre, moudre, "to grind," but follows the tense-formation of the first conjugation.

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published in this Series:—

CALENDARIUM GENEALOGICUM; for the Reigns of Henry III. and Edward I.
Edited by CHARLES ROBERTS, Secretary of the Public Record Office.
2 Vols. 1865.

This is a work of great value for elucidating the early history of our nobility and lauded gentry.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that a uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A. 1858.

Capgrave's Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the monastery from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I. The author had access to the title deeds of the house, and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Saint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, probably written in 1245. The second is an anonymous poem, written between 1440 and 1450, which is mainly valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written between 1066 and 1074.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA. Vol. I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vol. II.—De Adventu Minorum; re-edited, with additions. Chronicle of the Grey Friars. The ancient English version of the Rule of St. Francis. Abbreviatio Statutorum, 1451, &c. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Barrister-at-Law. 1858, 1882.

The first volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of St. Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers. The second volume contains materials found since the first volume was published.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work gives the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND; OR, A METRICAL VERSION OF THE HISTORY OF HECTOR BOECE; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this version.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A. 1858.

The first part relates only to the history of the Empire from the election of Henry I. the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, from the accession of Henry I. in 1100, to 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS): Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of Malmesbury, about the year 1367. A continuation carries the history of England down to the year 1413.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH: Bernardi Andreae Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet Laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE. 1858.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumaram, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Liber Custumarum. Vol. III., Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859-1862.

The Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the 12th, 13th, 14th, and early part of the 15th centuries. The Liber Custumarum was compiled in the early part of the 14th century during the reign of Edward II. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the 12th, 13th, and early part of the 14th centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa, it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to 1292. It is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the Kingdom.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, M.A. 1859-1861.
15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c. of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.
16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298; necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge, 1859.
17. BRUT Y TYWYSOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Roine, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.
19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECKOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. His work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards, and it has great value for the philologist.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commenced in 447, and come down to 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I.-IV. Edited by the Rev. J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V.-VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. Vol. VIII. Edited by GEORGE F. WARNER, M.A., of the Department of MSS., British Museum. 1861-1891.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable for the anecdotes which they contain.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland, the first in 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about 1188, and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Cambriæ et Descriptio Cambriæ; and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius and S. Hugh. Vol. VIII. contains the Treatise De Principum Instructione, and an Index to Vols. I.-IV. and VIII.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.
23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER. 1861-1863.

The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III., correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE. Edited by the Rev. HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The letters of Robert Grosseteste range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which original portions are distinguished from mere compilations. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor of Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381: Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. JOHANNIS DE TROKELOWE ET HENRICI DE BLANEFORDE CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1296; 1307-1324; 1392-1406. 4. GESTA ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, A THOMA WALSINGHAM, REGNANTE RICARDO SECUNDO, EJUSDEM ECCLESIE PRECENTORE, COMPILATA; Vol. I., 793-1290: Vol. II., 1290-1349: Vol. III., 1349-1411. 5. JOHANNIS AMUNDESHAM, MONACHI MONASTERII S. ALBANI, UT VIDETUR, ANNALES; Vols. I. and II. 6. REGISTRA QUORUNDAM ABBATUM MONASTERII S. ALBANI, QUI SÆCULO XV^{MO} FLORUERE; Vol. I., REGISTRUM ABBATIE JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, ABBATIS MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, ITERUM SUSCEPTÆ; ROBERTO BLAKENEY, CAPELLANO, QUONDAM ADSRIPTUM: Vol. II., REGISTRA JOHANNIS WHETHAMSTEDE, WILLELMI ALBON, ET WILLELMI WALINGFORDE, ABBATUM MONASTERII SANCTI ALBANI, CUM APPENDICE, CONTINENTE QUASDAM EPISTOLAS, A JOHANNE WHETHAMSTEDE CONSCRIPTAS. 7. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ A THOMA WALSINGHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans.

In the 3rd volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I.: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand: a short Chronicle Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the 4th volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blaneforde: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the 15th century.

The 5th, 6th, and 7th volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham: with a Continuation.

The 8th and 9th volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The 10th and 11th volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford.

The 12th volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMIE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from about 690 to 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

Richard of Cirencester's history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. It gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book ii. c. 3.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, 32-33, and 33-35 Edw. I; and 11-12 Edw. III. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Barrister-at-Law. Years 12-13, 13-14, 14, 14-15, and 15, Edward III. Edited and translated by LUKE OWEN PIKE, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1891.

The "Year Books" are the earliest of our Law Reports. They contain matter not only of practical utility to lawyers in the present day, but also illustrative of almost every branch of history, while for certain philological purposes they hold a position absolutely unique.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449-1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normandie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1863.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRIÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863-1867.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, M.A. 1863.

In the De Naturis Rerum are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A. 1864-1866.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066-1232; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066-1263; Annales de Burton, 1004-1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519-1277; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1-1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1-1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundescia, 1042-1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016-1347; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066-1289; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1-1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864-1869.

The present collection embraces chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work is valuable, not only as a biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury; 1187 to 1199. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London.

In letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIQUEES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A. 1864–1879. Vol. IV., 1431–1447. Vol. V., 1447–1471. Edited by Sir WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A., and EDWARD L. C. P. HARDY, F.S.A. 1884–1891.

40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORIES OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAURIN. Vol. I., Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. (Translations of the preceding Vols. I., II., and III.) Edited and translated by Sir WILLIAM HARDY, F.S.A., and EDWARD L. C. P. HARDY, F.S.A. 1864–1891.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III.–IX. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, D.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865–1886.

This chronicle begins with the creation, and is brought down to the reign of Edward III. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by the Rev. JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises are valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians. Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonised French.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Assistant Keeper of Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866–1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country.

44. MATTHÆ PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067–1253. Edited by Sir FREDERICK MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Manuscript Department of British Museum. 1866–1869.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455–1023. Edited by EDWARD EDWARDS. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde Chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify the statements, which, in substance, he adopts.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM THE EARLIEST TIMES TO 1135; AND SUPPLEMENT, CONTAINING THE EVENTS FROM 1141 TO 1150. Edited, with Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, M.R.I.A. 1866.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first, is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum;" in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, to the death of Henry III.; in the third, a history of the reign of Edward I. The language is a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, OR THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by the Rev. JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University of Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an ancient original. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192, KNOWN UNDER THE NAME OF BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOUEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1871.

The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds to some extent with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49). From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172-1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1041 TO 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, M.R.I.A. 1871.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES, Vols. I.-IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI. :—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Vol. V. A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1259. Vol. VI. Additamenta. Vol. VII. Index. Edited by the Rev. HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1884.
58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.
The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable.
59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.
60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873-1877.
61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by the Rev. JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.
62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311-1316. Vols. I.-IV. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Records. 1873-1878.
63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.
64. CHRONICON ANGLIÆ, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON, Barrister-at-Law, Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.
65. THÓMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, M.A., Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875-1884.
66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.
67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I.-VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1883. Vol. VII. Edited by JOSEPH BRIGSTOCKE SHEPPARD, LL.D. 1885.
The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham. The fourth, anonymous lives, Quadriologus, &c. The fifth, sixth, and seventh, the Epistles, and known letters.
68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.
The abbreviations Chronicorum extend to 1147 and the Ymagines Historiarum to 1201.

69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND, FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.
70. HENRICI DE BRACON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSUEUDINIBUS ANGLIÆ LIBRI QVINQUE IN VARIOS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. Vols. I.-IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878-1883.
71. THE HISTORIANS OF THE CHURCH OF YORK, AND ITS ARCHBISHOPS. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1879-1886.
72. REGISTRUM MALMESBURIENSE. THE REGISTER OF MALMESBURY ABBEY; PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. J. S. BREWER, M.A., Preacher at the Rolls, and Rector of Toppesfield; and CHARLES TRICE MARTIN, B.A. 1879-1880.
73. HISTORICAL WORKS OF GERVASE OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D.; Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1879, 1880.
74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTENDUNENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.D. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A. 1879.
75. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF SYMEON OF DURHAM. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A. 1882-1885.

- This Register derives its name from containing the statutes, rules, and orders made or compiled by S. Osmund, to be observed in the Cathedral and diocese of Salisbury.
79. CHARTULARY OF THE ABBEY OF RAMSEY. Vols. I. and II. Edited by WILLIAM HENRY HART, F.S.A., and the Rev. PONSONBY ANNESLEY LYONS. 1884, 1886.
80. CHARTULARIES OF ST. MARY'S ABBEY, DUBLIN, WITH THE REGISTER OF ITS HOUSE AT DUNBRODY, COUNTY OF WEXFORD, AND ANNALS OF IRELAND, 1162-1370. Edited by JOHN THOMAS GILBERT, F.S.A., M.R.I.A. Vols. I. and II. 1884, 1885.
81. EADMERI HISTORIA NOVORUM IN ANGLIA, ET OPUSCULA DUO DE VITA SANCTI ANSELMI ET QUIBUSDAM MIRACULIS EJUS. Edited by the Rev. MARTIN RULE, M.A. 1884.
82. CHRONICLES OF THE REIGNS OF STEPHEN, HENRY II., AND RICHARD I. Vols. I.-IV. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Barrister-at-Law. 1884-1890.

Vol. I. contains Books I.-IV. of the Historia Rerum Anglicarum of William of Newburgh. Vol. II. contains Book V. of that work, the continuation of the same to A.D. 1298 and the Draco Normannicus of Etienne de Rouen.

Vol. III. contains the Gesta Stephani Regis, the Chronicle of Richard of Hexham, the Relatio de Standardo of St. Aelred of Rievaulx, the poem of Jordan Fantosme, and the Chronicle of Richard of Devizes.

Vol. IV. contains the Chronicle of Robert of Torigni.

83. CHRONICLE OF THE ABBEY OF RAMSEY. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM DUNN MACRAY, M.A., F.S.A., Rector of Ducklington, Oxon. 1886.
84. CHRONICA ROGERI DE WENDOVER, SIVE FLORES HISTORIARUM. Vols. I.-III. Edited by HENRY GAY HEWLETT, Keeper of the Records of the Land Revenue. 1886-1889.
This edition gives that portion only of Roger of Wendover's Chronicle which can be accounted an original authority.
85. THE LETTER BOOKS OF THE MONASTERY OF CHRIST CHURCH, CANTERBURY, Edited by JOSEPH BRIGSTOCKE SHEPPARD, LL.D. Vols. I.-III., 1887-1889.
The Letters printed in these volumes were chiefly written between the years 1296 and 1333.
86. THE METRICAL CHRONICLE OF ROBERT OF GLOUCESTER. Edited by WILLIAM ALDIS WRIGHT, M.A., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge. Parts I. and II., 1887.
The date of the composition of this Chronicle is placed about the year 1300. The writer appears to have been an eye witness of many events which he describes. The language in which it is written was the dialect of Gloucestershire at that time.
87. CHRONICLE OF ROBERT OF BRUNNE. Edited by FREDERICK JAMES FURNIVALL, M.A., Barrister-at-Law. Parts I. and II. 1887.
Robert of Brunne, or Bourne, co. Lincoln, was a member of the Gilbertine Order established at Sempringham. His Chronicle is described by its editor as a work of fiction, a contribution not to English history, but to the history of English.
88. ICELANDIC SAGAS AND OTHER HISTORICAL DOCUMENTS relating to the Settlements and Descents of the Northmen on the British Isles. Vol. I. Orkneyinga Saga, and Magnus Saga. Vol. II. Hakonar Saga, and Magnus Saga. Edited by GUDBRAND VIGFUSSON, M.A. 1887.
89. THE TRIPARTITE LIFE OF ST. PATRICK, with other documents relating to that Saint. Edited by WHITLEY STOKES, LL.D., D.C.L., Honorary Fellow of Jesus College, Oxford; and Corresponding Member of the Institute of France. Parts I. and II. 1887.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, by Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, under the Superintendence of W. BASEVI SANDERS, an Assistant Record Keeper. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863), boards.

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester, and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS, from WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR to QUEEN ANNE, selected under the direction of the Master of the Rolls and Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, by Colonel Sir HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, an Assistant Record Keeper. Price, each Part, with translations and notes, double foolscap folio, 16s.

Part I. (William the Conqueror to Henry VII.). 1865. (Out of print.)

Part II. (Henry VII. and Edward VI.). 1866.

Part III. (Mary and Elizabeth). 1867.

Part IV. (James I. to Anne). 1868.

The first Part extends from William the Conqueror to Henry VII., and contains autographs of the kings of England, as well as of many other illustrious personages famous in history, and some interesting charters, letters patent, and state papers. The second Part for the reigns of Henry VIII. and Edward VI., consists principally of holograph letters, and autographs of kings, princes, statesmen, and other persons of great historical interest, who lived during those reigns. The third Part contains similar documents for the reigns of Mary and Elizabeth, including a signed bill of Lady Jane Grey. The fourth Part concludes the series, and comprises a number of documents taken from the originals belonging to the Constable of the Tower of London; also several records illustrative of the Gunpowder Plot, and a woodcut containing portraits of Mary Queen of Scots and James VI., circulated by their adherents in England, 1580-3.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Lieut-General J. CAMERON, R.E., C.B., F.R.S., and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, an Assistant Record Keeper. Part I. Price 2l. 10s.

The Anglo-Saxon MSS. represented in this volume from the earlier portions of the collection of archives belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and consist of a series of 25 charters, deeds, and wills, commencing with a record of proceedings at the first Synodal Council of Clovestho in 742, and terminating with the first part of a tripartite chirograph of the sixth year of the reign of Edward the Confessor.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Major-General A. COOKE, R.E., C.B., and collected and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, an Assistant Record Keeper. Part II. Price 3l. 10s.

(Also, separately. Edward the Confessor's Charter. Price 2s.)

The originals of the Fac-similes contained in this volume belong to the Deans and Chapters of Westminster, Exeter, Wells, Winchester, and Worcester; the Marquis of Bath, the Earl of Ilchester, Winchester College, Her Majesty's Public Record Office, Bodleian Library, Somersetshire Archæological and National History Society's Museum in Taunton Castle, and William Salt Library at Stafford. They consist of charters and other documents granted by, or during the reigns of, Baldred, Æthelred, Offa, and Burgred, Kings of Mercia; Uhtred of the Huiccas, Ceadwalla and Ini of Wessex; Æthelwulf, Eadward the Elder, Æthelstan, Eadmund the First, Eadred, Eadwig, Eadgar, Eadward the Second, Æthelred the Second, Cnut, Eadward the Confessor, and William the Conqueror, embracing altogether a period of nearly four hundred years.

FAC-SIMILES OF ANGLO-SAXON MANUSCRIPTS. Photozincographed, by Command of Her Majesty, upon the recommendation of the Master of the Rolls, by the DIRECTOR-GENERAL of the ORDNANCE SURVEY, Colonel R. H. STOTHERD, R.E., C.B., and collected and edited by W. BASEVI SANDERS, an Assistant Keeper of Her Majesty's Records. Part III. Price 6l. 6s.

This volume contains fac-similes of the Ashburnham collection of Anglo-Saxon Charters, &c., including King Alfred's Will. The MSS. represented in it, range from A.D. 697 to A.D. 1161, being charters, wills, deeds, and reports of Synodal transactions during the reigns of Kings Wihtrud of Kent, Offa, Eardwulf, Coenwulf, Cuthred, Beornwulf, Æthelwulf, Ælfred, Eadward the Elder, Eadmund, Eadred, Queen Eadgifu, and Kings Eadgar, Æthelred the Second, Cnut, Henry the First, and Henry the Second. In addition to these are two belonging to the Marquis of Anglesey, one of them being the Foundation Charter of Burton Abbey by Æthelred the Second with the testament of its great benefactor Wulfric.

This work forms a comprehensive Palæographic Series for Ireland. It furnishes characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions are combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the early part of the eighteenth century.

The specimens have been reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palæographic studies.

In the work are also printed in full, for the first time, many original and important historical documents.

Part I. commences with the earliest Irish MSS. extant.

Part II.: From the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299.

Part III.: From A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII.

Part IV. 1.: From reign of Edward VI. to that of James I.

In Part IV. 2.—the work is carried down to the early part of the eighteenth century, with Index to the entire publication.

ACCOUNT OF FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MANUSCRIPTS OF IRELAND. In one Volume; 8vo., with Index. Price 10s. Parts I. and II. together. Price 2s. 6d. Part II. Price 1s. 6d. Part III. Price 1s. Part IV. 1. Price 2s. Part IV. 2. Price 2s. 6d.
